Reds May Be On Soil of Germany

LONDON, Aug. 5.—Berlin reported today that Russian forces had broken through the German lines north of Virbalis, Lithuanian village only three miles from the East Prussian frontier, indicating that they may have carried the battle across the border onto the "holy soil" of Germany proper. While a Nazi military spokesman did not mention a border crossing in reporting the break-through, observers pointed out that Red army flying wedges crashing through German positions usually scored gains of more than three miles.

Gen. Ivan D. Chlenakovsky's army was massed on a 100-mile front within easy striking distance of East Prussia, and his onslaughts heretofore have packed momentum enough to drive forward several miles at a single lunge.

Virbalis is a Lithuanian frontier station just off the Kaunas-Koenigsberg trunk railway. The Transocean news agency quoted a military spokesman as reporting "bitter fighting" north of the village—apparently along the railroad—and acknowledging a breach in the German lines.

A United Press dispatch from Moscow said Chlenakovsky had smashed through German positions in the forests fringing the frontier and mopped up isolated knots of resistance preparatory to a thrust into East Prussia.

Services' Candidate Pledges All-Out Fight for Veterans

An enthusiastic crowd of more than 700 people jammed Memorial Hall Friday night and cheered W. J. Williams, Veterans' and Armed Services candidate in Tuesday's provincial election, when he said "the veterans' movement is determined there will be no bread-lines for men returning from active service nor for any man who volunteered to serve his country."

5 Bus. Per Acre

Grain Delivery Quotas Are Set For Crop Year

OTTAWA, Aug. 5.—(CP)—Initial quotas for grain deliveries in western Canada in the new crop year have been fixed at five bushels per authorized acre for wheat and five bushels per seeded acre for oats and barley. Trade Minister MacKinnon announced today in the Commons.

No quotas have been placed on rye and flaxseed.

Mr. MacKinnon added:

"By the time the new crop deliveries commence in volume, the quotas at individual points will be adapted to the available space as in previous years, with due regard to acreage, yield and various market factors."

BARLEY PERMITS

"As was provided last year, producers who have barley suitable for malting purposes, and whose sample is accepted by the buyer, will be given a special permit to ship and deliver one carlot of malting barley over and above their present established quota."

"By the close of the crop year on July 31st, producers at nearly 90 per cent of the country points in the prairie provinces had been

Berlin Says German Troops Withdraw From Florence

By JAMES E. ROPER

Exclusive to The Edmonton Bulletin

LONDON, Aug. 5.—The Nazi high command said today that German troops had withdrawn from Florence, great Italian art centre, as the British Eighth Army closed in on it and occupied the part of the city south of the Arno river.

A Berlin communique said the Germans pulled back "to the north of Florence in order to spare the historic town with its irreplaceable treasures of art, which was shelled yesterday by the enemy with heavy artillery throughout the day."

Rome dispatches reporting the seizure of the quarter of Florence below the Arno, which bisects the city, said German paratroopers lined the north bank of the river in evident readiness to defend the city despite the fact that the Nazis had declared it "open" or not to be fought for.

Coinciding with the Berlin report of the evacuation of Florence, a National Broadcasting Company correspondent said the Eighth Army had entered the centre of the city after pushing across the Arno.

The Nazi propaganda claim that the Allies shelled Florence yesterday was not borne out by any Allied report.

The German decision to evacuate Florence, if correctly reported from Berlin, apparently was taken at the eleventh hour as the Allies massed inside the city and drove against the Arno on either side, since Rome dispatches indicate the garrison was prepared to defend it.

Large-Scale Withdrawal Started To Escape Pincers Being Closed By British and Canadian Troops

By VIRGIL PINKLEY

Exclusive to The Edmonton Bulletin

LONDON, Aug. 5.—Powerful German forces which have been concentrated south and southeast of Caen, astride the shortest Allied path to Paris, today began a large-scale withdrawal on an eight-mile front between the Orne and the Odon rivers to escape the closing jaws of pincers formed by British and Canadian wings of Lt.-Gen. Miles Dempsey's 2nd Army.

The break in the long and bloody deadlock below Caen came as American vanguards, fanning out through Brittany, probed the approaches to St. Nazaire and Nantes on the south coast and pushed to within 80 miles or less of Brest at the western tip of the peninsula. Supreme headquarters said the Americans were encountering no organized resistance.

Reporting from the British-Canadian front, British United Press Correspondent Samuel D. Hales said the Germans appeared to be falling back across the Orne river.

ON THE VILLERS BOGAGE FRONT, Aug. 5.—(AP)—British troops, lunging out from captured Villers-Bocage have taken Aunay-sur-Odon, and have driven the Germans from all territory east of Aunay to the River Orne.

abandoning the salient from which they have been menacing the British flank.

Consolidation of the flank was expected to pave the way for a renewed smash by the 2nd Army toward Paris, 112 miles east of its positions east of Caen.

ENTER VILLERS BOGAGE
During the night British troops broke into the enemy stronghold of Villers Bocage, 10 miles southeast of Caen, and found it abandoned. Fanning out rapidly across the rear of the retreating Germans, the British and Canadians established a new line running east, right up to the Orne river.

Ondefontaine, six miles south of Villers Bocage, also fell to the British. Continued on Page 2, Col. 2

Allied Losses In Normandy Total 116,148

LONDON, Aug. 5.—(AP)—Allied forces in France have lost a total of 116,148 men killed, wounded or missing, from D-Day, June 6, through July 10, supreme headquarters announced today.

Canadian casualties were 919 killed, 4,354 wounded and 1,272 missing.

United States forces lost 11,156 killed, 52,710 wounded and 6,143 missing.

Included in these figures were the casualties sustained by the United States Army during pre-invasion exercises last April, when E-boats attacked a convoy and killed 130 and wounded 41, with 312 missing.

British losses were 5,646 killed, 27,766 wounded and 6,182 missing.

Douglas States: CCF Plans Tax on Interest To Finance Social Services

Reiterating his opinion, expressed at a Calgary meeting Thursday night, that a provincial government has the power to tax interest payments to mortgage firms in the east, Premier T. C. Douglas of Saskatchewan told an overflow audience of about 700 in the Masonic Temple Friday that the CCF government he heads plans to tax interest payments to eastern mortgage companies to secure part of the money required for increased social services.

Premier Douglas, who proved an extremely witty platform personality, was speaking in behalf of Edmonton CCF candidates in the provincial election on Tuesday.

Elmer E. Roper, Alberta's leader of the party; J. H. Dowler, Mrs. F. C. Butterworth and James Enright, four of the five CCF candidates in the Edmonton constituency, also addressed the meeting briefly, previous to the main address by Premier Douglas.

In addition to the 600 who packed the hall to capacity, an additional hundred listened to the addresses from a loudspeaker outside the hall.

OUTLINES PLANS
Premier Douglas enumerated additional social services planned for Saskatchewan, such as increased

Big Aerial Blows Nazi War Plants, Airports, Rail Hubs Heavily Attacked

By WALTER CRONKITE
Exclusive to The Edmonton Bulletin

LONDON, Aug. 5.—A 2,000-plane fleet of Flying Fortresses, Liberators and fighters laid a destructive carpet of bombs over a dozen war plants, air fields and rail hubs scattered through central and northern Germany today.

More than 1,100 heavy bombers with a strong escort of fighters swept through excellent weather over the target areas in the many-pronged precision bombardment of centres supplying the German war machine.

A communiqué said the targets included an oil refinery at Dollberg, an oil storage plant at Nienburg, an aircraft components factory and rail yards at Hallerleben, armament works at Magdeburg, air fields at Hanover, Langerhagen and Halberstadt, and unidentified objectives in the Brunswick-Magdeburg area on the western approaches to Berlin.

CONTINUE IN AFTERNOON
The Allied air offensive continued this afternoon with coastal observers reporting formations flying out across the channel above a ground haze. One force took 20 minutes to cross the coast.

The daylight raid came after extensive operations by RAF, RCAF and American aircraft over the continent last night and throughout yesterday.

RAF Lancasters and Halifaxes again attacked supply depots at L'Isle Adam, Trossy and St. Maximin, and laid mines in enemy waters yesterday. The air ministry announced today. Four of the bombers were reported missing.

Other heavy bombers struck at airfields near Lille, a railway bridge at Elaples, a coastal battery in the Pas de Calais area, and oil storage depots at Paillic and Bec D'Embrès.

The American advance into southern Brittany penetrated into the Morbihan department, where French Maquis (patriots) have been sabotaging and otherwise harassing the Germans.

While the main weight of the American offensive appeared to have been thrown against the south coast and west toward Brest, one tank column branched off northwest from Dol-De Bretagne, toward the fishing village of St. Malo and at last reports was only six miles away.

Transport Workers Continuing Strike In Philadelphia
PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 5.—(AP)—Almost complete paralysis set in again last night on Philadelphia's transportation system, now property of the United States government, with leaders of the four-day tieup still shouting defiance at army attempts to restore service.

James McMenamin, spokesman for the committee representing strikers, announced at 9 p.m. E.D.T. The unanimous decision of the general strike committee to stay status quo.

The last Broad Street subway train ended operations at 6:30 p.m. when relief operators failed to appear. The last trolley quit running at 8 o'clock, but the Market Street subway-elevated line continued on a reduced schedule—the only line running in the city.

Says Interest Tax Can Pay For Services

public health and educational services and then said:
"We now come to the question that everybody asks. Where is the money coming from?"

"A provincial government cannot issue money, set tariffs fix freight rates or carry on international trade.

"We believe it is proper to get the money from the people who can best afford to give it rather than from those who can least afford it. We believe the province has the power to place a tax on the millions of dollars in interest that is taken from the people and sent to the head offices of the mortgage companies in the east every year.

"Some of the companies haven't any offices in the province and have the interest payments collected by law firms for them. They pay no taxes in the province. We also think we can secure more in royalties from timber and other resources until such time as we can take over the resources and have them developed for the benefit of all the people," the speaker declared.

TWO WARS IN PROGRESS
There are two wars in progress today, Premier Douglas said. One was against tyranny and oppression and the other against economic insecurity. One was fought with tanks, guns and planes, but the other was a war of ideas. In this second war there must be no armistice, he said.

Predicting an early end to the war in Europe, the speaker said the people of Canada would build, within the next five years, either the basis of a new and better order of economic security or sow the seeds of a new depression and another war.

"This capitalist economy cannot live without war. It would have died some time ago had it not been for the shot in the arm the war gave to it. I believe it is our Christian duty to move forward with the CCF. We have the choice between capitalism, with its greed and war, and co-operation with its security and social wellbeing.

BEACHHEAD SECURED
"We in Saskatchewan have established a beachhead in the war against capitalism and we are hoping that you in Alberta will soon join us, followed by all of Canada and the whole world," Mr. Douglas said.

The CCF is the only political party in Canada today that will be capable of forming a stable government during the coming years, Mr. Douglas contended. In support of this contention he pointed to B.C., where a coalition of the old parties was necessary before a government was formed, to Manitoba where a similar situation prevails, to Ontario where the Conservatives retain office only with the support of the Liberal party and the Maritimes, where he claimed the CCF is growing with great rapidity.

Of the situation in Quebec Mr. Douglas said:
"From what I could learn during a visit to Montreal some weeks ago, Godbout and King are on their way out and the Bloc Populaire is coming to the fore. This does not make me particularly happy, but it shows how things are developing."

CRITIZES GOVERNMENT
The Saskatchewan premier criticized the federal government for failure to advance in the development of secondary natural resources, stating that the USA has built up a big synthetic rubber industry since Pearl Harbor and has made great strides into the new field of chemistry, where wonderful new plastics are manufactured from wheat by-products.

The one synthetic rubber plant in Canada, at Sarnia, makes its product from gas by-products of wheat boughs in the USA, but originally grown in Canada, he said.

He said it was highly amusing to read the advertisements of the oil companies now appearing in the newspapers, seeking to prove, that these big companies had been losing money year after year. Why then, do they oppose the CCF and public ownership of resources? Mr. Douglas asked.

SAYS BILLIONS MADE
He urged his listeners not to be "taken in" by "this line," charging that the huge companies such as Standard Oil, have been making billions out of oil in the years gone by.

When the newspapers and the big monopolies warn the people to stay away from the CCF, that's the best tip for the people to draw close to the CCF, he said.

He predicted that Saskatchewan would be a model for the whole continent in the way of progressive labor legislation before 12 months have passed.

Mr. Roper said there was no question as to who is fighting the CCF. Not so long ago the directors of Canada's banks "went political" publishing long statements warning about the menace of socialism. Then the oil interests and the power interests lined up against the CCF.

Financial interests are now backing the Social Credit government, Mr. Roper declared.
BULLETIN FAIR, ACCURATE
After stating that he believed The Edmonton Bulletin always strives to give fair and accurate coverage of political speeches, Mr. Roper read a Canadian Press dispatch on a speech by Hon. Solon E. Low, national leader of the Social Credit Party, delivered at Medicine Hat on August 2, in which Mr. Low is quoted as saying:
"If Alberta could demonstrate to the world it could set the socialist movement back on its heels,

Premier Warns Against Ideas Outdated Here

increased, but rural electrification would not be assisted.

"They may get around to talking of socializing the laundries but by then they will be all washed up," said Mr. Manning.

There had been much discussion of post-war reconstruction and many plans had been made. But one or two people in a room could devise fairly effective reconstruction plans in a few days. The problem was to get sufficient money to carry out such projects. The Social Creditors alone had the plans which would provide for the money needed.

TO AID VETERANS
"We don't intend to leave returned men sitting on the doorstep while governments fight over their responsibilities after the war," said Mr. Manning.

"We'll look after the men first and then do any fighting we have to do with the federal government afterwards."

The Social Credit government was the most progressive in Canada. Its purpose was to remove the root causes of social and economic ills. There must be sufficient goods and the money to buy them, thus giving the people security and a decent standard of living. At present there was insufficient buying power to meet the people's needs.

"Politicians used to say they would blast their way into markets," said Mr. Manning. "Barriers to trade had been erected. But now we have full employment when goods are being destroyed. We are buying that prosperity with the blood of the finest young people of this generation and we must never forget that."

SOCIALISM DATED
State socialism was 25 years out of date. The problem was not production but distribution "and you don't solve that problem by changing the owner."

Socialism said that centralization of power and control was necessary. But Social Credit said power should remain in the people's hands. Socialism would require boards and other bodies to carry out its programs and the people would have no more control over industry than they had at present.

Speaking of the Independent support would come from quarters which had opposed it in the past such as heads of important businesses in eastern Canada, who could make their contributions to Social Credit with no strings attached.

Full Support For Veterans Is Promised

was critical, none of the political parties had done anything to solve the problem. He pointed out that veterans' organizations all over Canada had intervened to prevent evictions and had done everything in their power to force action being taken to meet the requirements of the people.

"I make the suggestion that the men of the home defence army could be organized to build low cost housing units and that prisoners of war in this vicinity could be very well employed in making bricks for such a project.

"A lot of people say 'what can Bill Williams do in the house, he's only one man,' the speaker said. "They should remember that three members from the armed services will be elected and returned to sit in the legislature. These men may not know about the administration and legislation of servicemen's problems and they may need guidance, but the four of us standing and fighting together for the rights of returned men might easily hold the power if the house is closely divided. We'll be in there to see that any promises given to servicemen are going to be implemented—or know the reason why."

SEVERAL SPEAKERS
Representatives of every veterans' organization in the city were present on the platform for the public rally and speakers included James Macdonald, new veterans' representative; S. C. S. Kerr, K.C., president of the Canadian Corps Association; Mrs. G. E. Goodall, president of the central council of Women's Auxiliaries; H. E. Tanner, president of the Canadian Legion; Paddy Griffin, former executive member of the Canadian Legion; Sgt. E. Tannous, veteran of the present Italian campaign; J. A. Ross, secretary of the Armed Forces Federation; and Jack Philackales, campaign manager.

Paddy Griffin, who has been ill for the last several months, received a warm welcome from the platform to appear for the support of a veterans' candidate.

"We need a man in the government to keep an eye on things, a man who will put his whole soul and heart and body into seeing that our boys get a square deal when they get home," Mr. Griffin said.

MANY GOOD ACTS
"Succeeding governments have put in many good acts for ex-servicemen and even our Pension Act is perhaps the best in the world. It is not the acts or statutes which are at fault but the regulations and loopholes that allow unfair administration. We must have someone with a knowledge of the legislation of soldiers' affairs in the government to see that things aren't bogged down in red tape."

"Sympathy and common sense are necessary in the administration of these acts and people must realize there will be some of the boys coming home who will have to be looked after all their lives. After every war there has always been a percentage of the men who couldn't readjust themselves and never before have men gone through such hell as at present."

"I must say that the Social Credit government always showed courtesy and consideration towards me in my dealing with them regarding veterans' affairs," he said, "but it is obvious that we must have a man representing us in the government who is fearless and will fight for our rights."

DAY-TO-DAY CONTACT
S. C. S. Kerr said "Bill Williams has day-to-day contact with veterans, new and old. He knows their problems. There are already a number of comparatively good statutes on the books for ex-servicemen but it is necessary to see that they are administered fairly and squarely, and it is also necessary to see that other members of the house are kept in line with the thought of those men who are returning."

Mrs. Goodall urged the women voters to exercise their vote and pointed out that servicemen's wives far outnumber the number of servicemen at present in the city. "Now is our chance to see that things are started to achieve what we want for them when they get home."

H. E. Tanner said: "We must do everything in our power to see that the mistakes made after the last war are not repeated after this. Ex-servicemen tried to stop shipment of scrap iron to Japan just before the outbreak of war because they knew what was being done with it. This time we have to be in a position to make our voice heard in the right place to see that there isn't a similar occurrence a few years after this war."

BACK UP TROOPS
Sgt. E. Tannous who lost his right leg during the fighting in Italy urged the people not to forget the men who are still fighting and dying in foreign lands. "Those men overseas know what they want and they will work for it if only they are given the chance."

J. A. Ross said, "This is an historic event when all veterans' organizations have united to pool their efforts on behalf of servicemen. It is not a political movement we want but a movement which will assist in the social uplifting of all people."

"At some 260 stations, however, the available space did not permit delivery of the balance of the 1943 crops, and at these stations open deliveries of wheat and oats from the old crop has been extended until Aug. 15. Producers who were unable to deliver their barley on past open quotas, due to lack of space, at their delivery point, may apply to the Canadian wheat board for special permission to deliver.

ISSUE 170,000 CHEQUES
"With respect to the 1940-41 crop participation payments, up to the present approximately 225,000 requisitions have been received from producers, and approximately 170,000 cheques have been issued.

The remainder of the 1940 cheques, based on requisitions already received, should be sent out within the next two or three weeks, with the exception of course, of those requisition which, for one reason or another, require adjustment.

"Immediately thereafter it is planned to start writing cheques for the 1941 and 1942 crops, which will go out in one cheque. At the same time, the Canadian Wheat Board will make arrangements for replacing lost certificates, of which there is a tremendous number.

E. E. Perley (PC—Qu'Appelle) said he thought the wheat quotas should be raised as soon as possible to 10 bushels per authorized acre, because of the availability of space.

Far to the southwest, Russian tanks were rolling westward within striking distance of Krakow, last big bastion before German Silesia, and advancing within less than 80 miles of German territory on that lower Polish front.

The battle of central and southern Poland raged with mounting fury as the Red army scored substantial gains west of the Vistula below Warsaw while developing powerful thrusts into the Carpathian foothills along the Czechoslovak border.

Marshal Konstantin K. Rokossovsky continued to expand his bridgeheads northward, with the likelihood of the eventual development of operations which would by-pass Warsaw and outflank east Prussia in a push for Danzig.

Meanwhile the battle inside Warsaw was reported swinging definitely in favor of the patriot army of 25,000, which an underground communication said had captured two rail stations in the Polish capital and now controlled most of the west and central parts of the city.

The patriots seized the Wschodni rail station in the northern part of Warsaw, the communists said, and the Wlenski station on the east bank of the Vistula in west central Praga, the suburb across the river from the city proper.

Debate on Policy

International Action Needed To Insure Security of World Premier King Tells Commons

OTTAWA, Aug. 5.—(CP)—Prime Minister Mackenzie King said in the Commons last night that Progressive Conservative members who criticized the government's attitude on relations in the British Commonwealth were voicing opinions contrary to those of John Bracken, national leader of the Progressive Conservative Party.

Mr. King spoke after Howard Green (PC-Vancouver South), had attacked the government's foreign policy and made particular references to its relationship in the Commonwealth.

Mrs. Cora Casselman (L-Edmonton) said Canada was paying the way for contribution to a lasting peace by putting her own house in order with economic measures such as floors for farm and fish products.

REPLIES TO TORIES

Mr. King, speaking in reply to the Progressive Conservative members said they had voiced sentiments contrary to those of their own leader. He quoted extracts from an interview with Mr. Bracken on Commonwealth relations.

"It is about time someone should tell us whether they speak as members of the Progressive Conservative party and if so on what ground do they justify their complete opposition to their leader," Mr. King said.

Mr. King said answers made by Mr. Bracken in the interview showed him to favor Canada remaining wholly autonomous in the Commonwealth and opposed to a permanent form of organization. On the question of whether the Commonwealth should speak with a single voice Mr. Bracken had said the Dominion should not be forced to accept a majority decision among the Commonwealth countries without parliamentary approval and decision on the declaration of war should rest with the Canadian parliament.

NEEDS FOR FUTURE

In his main speech in the debate earlier in the day, Mr. King said a preponderance of power in the hands of the United Nations, coupled with concerted steps to improve living conditions throughout the world were primary requisites for the maintenance of a lasting peace.

A large superiority of power on the side of peace was not sufficient for the maintenance of the peace, Mr. King said in opening debate on Canada's external affairs.

"Security from war is indeed essential, but real security requires international action and organization in many other fields—in social welfare, in trade, in technical progress, in transportation and in economic development," he said.

GENERAL AIM

"The general aim must be to lower the temperature of nationalism, while preserving its good features, and thus to diminish national rivalries and reduce the importance of frontiers. This requires that there should be a wide and fruitful area of collaboration, including the continuance of part of the elaborate system of wartime co-operation which we have built up among the Allies under stress of danger."

Canada would have her part to play in a world organization established to maintain the peace, but what part that would be had not yet been decided.

Howard Green (PC-Vancouver South) said Canada's part in the post-war world should be something more than the leader of small nations. M. J. Coldwell, C.C.F. leader, disagreed with Mr. Green and said that until Canada was in a position to take her side along the great nations she should fulfill the role for which she was best suited—that of leader of lesser nations.

Mr. Coldwell said any thoughts of maintaining the peace in a "big-power world" should be laid aside.

CAN'T KEEP PEACE

"The big powers by themselves cannot maintain peace, for by themselves they must necessarily engage in delicate manoeuvres to balance each of them against the other," he said.

A world organization set up to maintain the peace would have to be "democratically representative of all peoples, great and small."

Mr. King, while dealing with international matters, turned for a moment to the discussion of home problems. He announced that the government had decided on the complete exclusion of Japanese immigration after the war.

He also announced that Canada has received no authoritative invitation to join the Pan-American Union.

Mr. King said Britain, the United States, Russia and China had proposed the establishment of a world council to act "as the central agency for watching over the peace of the world and initiating action to remove threats of war and other causes of serious disagreement or dissension."

The four great powers would have permanent representation on the council, and it was suggested that "by a process of election or selection yet to be worked out, a number of representatives of other states have temporary membership on the council."

CHOICE OF NATIONS

"In determining what states should be represented on the council with the great powers, it is I believe, necessary to apply the functional idea. Those countries which have most to contribute to the maintenance of the peace of the world should be most frequently selected. The military contribution actually made during this war by the members of the United Nations provides one good working basis for a selective principle of choice."

Mr. King said that since he returned from the conference of Empire prime ministers in London last May he had noticed "a tendency in certain quarters... to revive controversy over an issue... over whether the British Commonwealth should seek always to speak with a single voice and should be permanently represented as such on the new world council."

He quoted with approval a statement made in Ottawa by Prime Minister Peter Fraser of New Zealand that no one government of the Commonwealth could speak for other governments.

MAKE ATTITUDE KNOWN

Mr. Green said that Canada should either have full representation on world councils or if the Commonwealth was to be represented by a United Kingdom spokesman there should be a preliminary empire conference at which Canada's attitude would be made known.

He said he feared the government was returning to the "isolationist and non-commitment" policy it observed up to the outbreak of war and this is unsound and unfair to the Canadian people.

Mr. Coldwell said Canada's obligations to the ideal of lasting peace were very definite. They were: "Allegiance to the idea of a

Patriots Seize Two of Warsaw's Rail Stations

By JOHN A. PARRIS
Exclusive to The Edmonton Bulletin
Copyright, 1944, by British United Press
LONDON, Aug. 5.— Polish underground units have captured two railway stations and control of almost all of the west and central sections of Warsaw despite vigorous counter-attacks by Germans with tanks and incendiary bombs, dropped by low flying planes, General Bors, partisan leader, reported in a communique today.

The underground forces, armed with rifles, machine guns and hand grenades, captured Wazhinski railway station in the northern part of the capital near the west bank of the Vistula, and Wilenski station on the east bank of the Vistula in west central Praga, Bors reported.

Hundreds of barbed wire barricades and roadblocks were being built in the capital's streets, from behind which the Polish fighters ward off German attacks, and the tank assaults were met with Molotov cocktails (improvised bombs) being turned out in mass production by women and young girls.

HEAVIEST FIGHTING

Some of the heaviest fighting, according to reports reaching here, appeared to have been for control of four bridges on the Vistula and the main railway station in the centre of Warsaw, which Bors said has changed hands many times during four days of fighting with heavy losses on both sides. He said the Germans now hold these objectives.

German attempts to recapture the two main highways in the centre of Warsaw had been beaten back in bitter fighting. The Germans, however, succeeded in keeping open a narrow avenue on the east and west highway running through the capital for the movement of their columns.

The avenue was kept open only after fierce fighting, in which the Germans threw in strong forces of tanks, Bors said.

Australia's Effort Impresses Briton

VANCOUVER, Aug. 5.—(CP)—G. Spencer Summers, British steel industrialist and member of the House of Commons, told members of a service club here yesterday he was greatly impressed with Australia's war effort after a tour of that country. Mr. Summers arrived here Thursday night from Auckland, New Zealand, on the last lap of a 35,000-mile tour from England to Australia, New Zealand, New Guinea and Canada. In the course of his tour of New Guinea he visited several battle areas where Australians were making steady progress against the Japanese.

democratic international organization in which some phases of national sovereignty are merged in a collective system of security; abolition of national armaments and their pooling in an international police force; the planned use of economic resources to raise living standards throughout the world, and for the elimination of insecurity, poverty and exploitation among all peoples, and the attainment of self-government by dependent peoples."

Mr. Green said that whether intentionally or not "the fact is that the foreign policy of the present government is leading in the direction of making Canada a small nation."

"The policy is wrong because of our great area, wrong because of our resources, wrong because of the type of our people—a bold, forward looking people—wrong because of our strength, and wrong because our mission in the world is not that of a small nation."

Some were putting Canada as a post-war leader of small nations.

MUST AIM HIGHER

If most of the Canadian people do not aim at a higher destiny for Canada, the Dominion would never be anything more than a small nation "and in the long run will end up under the thumb of the United States."

Mr. Green said he envisaged Canada as a great power standing alongside Britain. To occupy such a post Canada's population would have to grow to between 40,000,000 and 75,000,000 people.

He said he hoped that the Canadian people would aim at making Canada a great power that could stand alongside Britain.

He said he believed that most of the Canadian people wanted Canada to remain a British country.

Mr. Green said that Prime Minister Mackenzie King, in dealing with Empire relations did not seem to place enough emphasis on loyalty to the crown.

Mr. King interjected that because he didn't go around professing his loyalty "every half-hour" that didn't mean he was not a loyal citizen. He added that as the house was discussing the subject he would like to take the opportunity of extending a loyal greeting to the queen on her birthday yesterday.

ROLE IN PACIFIC

Mr. Green said he was disappointed that Mr. King had given no outline on Canada's role in the Pacific. He would have liked to have heard of the dominion's plans for collaborating with Australia and New Zealand in matters such as the establishment of a trans-Pacific air line. He said he would have liked to have heard something from Mr. King which would allay rumors he heard about laxity in Canada's military preparations for participation in the Pacific theatre of operations.

Dear

This has been a week of unusual activity not only on the great battlefronts of the world, but also on the home front. We here at home have been with you in spirit as the powerful Red Armies steam-rolled the enemy back into his own country, and the Allied Armies in Normandy have broken through the crust of German armor and now are making Brittany a household word.

Here at home our attention has been caught by the provincial general election campaigns of the various parties. The weather, which has remained capricious with a tendency to bring too much rain in this part of the province, while leaving the south so short that some crops will not ripen, has been a matter of interest, as soon the binders and threshing machines will be at work. There have been many activities here, but perhaps it will be best to tell you of it all day by day.

MacKinnon, minister of trade and commerce, he tells of renewing old acquaintances and of the wonderful spirit of the men. Wives of Royal Air Force men are preparing to follow their husbands home to the British Isles, according to information received here.

August 1

Four well-known Edmonton musicians, members of the RCAF Central Band at Ottawa who are on leave here, visited the Statue of Liberty on Bedloe Island, N.Y., where they played a concert during a recent tour on behalf of the U.S. Fifth War Bond Campaign. They are Sgt. S. E. Stolyk (drum major), LAC Jack Tolmel, LAC John Van Deelen and WO2 Edward Kirkwood, bandmaster. The four men played in orchestras and bands prior to the war, and were members of RCAF bands in Edmonton before going to Ottawa.

Army and Navy Pats are the new Northern Alberta senior girls' football champions. They stayed off a bitter threat by Walk-Rite "A" in the last inning at Kingsway Park and registered a 2-0 victory in the deciding game of the best-of-three finals. Walter Johnson set the Arrows down with three hits—all singletons—in a Senior Baseball League game at Renfrew Park, and the Dodgers loomed to a 9-0 shutout. The win cut the Yanks' marking over the Chuck Henderson squad to less than half a game.

Despite showers of robot bombs and the blitz, British theatres have been well patronized all through the war, and Hitler's latest terror weapon has failed to halt operations of theatres even in London, according to John Davis, managing director of Odeon Theatres, Ltd., of Great Britain, an Edmonton visitor told interviewers.

Record Crowds Attending 54th Red Deer Fair

Exclusive to The Edmonton Bulletin
RED DEER, Aug. 5.—Ideal weather and record crowds featured Friday, the second day of Red Deer's 54th annual fair, and officials of the exhibition were well pleased with the day's results.

Official opening of the fair took place in front of the grandstand Friday afternoon, with Col. J. J. Burton-Willison, E.D. commandant A20 Canadian Army Service Corps training centre Red Deer, doing the honors. He was introduced by R. A. Van Slyke, president of the Red Deer Agricultural Society. Friday also marked the first fair appearance of the famous military band from A20 training centre. The popular band, under direction of Bandmaster Wally Hayward, played during the afternoon and were given a great hand by the crowds.

GRANDSTAND PACKED
Packed grandstands greeted the platform artists at three performances on Friday. The first of the races were run in the afternoon with at night. An innovation this year was the chuck wagon events. There were some smart numbers on the running races and the chuck wagon duels were a hit with the crowd.

The midway attractions provided by the E. J. Casey Shows were well patronized with the rides doing particularly well.

It was a busy day for 30 boys from central Alberta, who are in attendance at the Farm Boys' Camp. The first held here since the outbreak of war. Under direction of their superior, District Agriculturalist J. E. Birdsall, the boys listened to lectures and had demonstrations from a staff of qualified instructors.

The barns on the grounds had a steady stream of visitors all day as fairgoers inspected the fine stock. Entries are heavy in all classes of horses, cattle, sheep and swine. Children's classes, as usual, find many entries and keen competition.

QUALITY IS HIGH

Quality is high in ladies' work and domestic manufacture. One of the interesting exhibits in the Arts building is one featuring Red Cross work, prisoners-of-war parcels, and survivor's kits. Provincial school, Red Deer, also has in this building an interesting display of work.

The display staged by A20 CASC Training Centre, Red Deer, was another point of interest as crowds inspected the mobile work shops set up in operation.

The Red Cross will benefit handsomely judging by the way tickets sold on Friday on the Red Cross calf. This animal, donated by Thos. Baines, of Red Deer, will be drawn for on Saturday night, with proceeds going to the Red Cross.

Another big day is in view for Saturday, final day of the fair. One of the attractive features will be the monster stock parade. This colorful event takes place on the race track in front of the grandstand. In addition there will be a good card of running races, including the Red Deer Derby at 1-16 miles for the Canadian Legion cup, and more chuck wagon races. Grandstand performances will be given in the afternoon and evening. The A20 band will again be a highlight.

"Four of a Kind"—Jasper Park

During the summer of 1943, a black bear in Jasper National Park had four cubs, three brown and one black, which created great excitement for tourists and residents of Jasper. As soon as the cubs could walk the mother bear proudly paraded them through the streets, and close to the railway cars. The cubs quickly became accustomed to humans and were fed chocolate bars, biscuits and other sweets, while children found the cubs delightful playmates. This summer, the cute little "clowns" are good-sized, powerful bears. They have become professional "beggers," preferring the easy way of getting food to the natural way of hunting for it in the forest. Eventually, they may raid kitchens, tents and cars for food, and become nuisances. To avoid such activities visitors to Jasper are constantly asked not to feed or pet the baby bears.

$3,000 Damage In 2-Alarm Fire Riverdale Hall

City fireman R. M. Feather, 9442 96 street, was dragged to safety after being overcome in a two-alarm fire Friday afternoon at Riverdale community hall, 9231 100 avenue. Damage to the building was estimated at approximately $3,000.

The blaze, of unknown origin, was believed to have started at the rear of the building, on the stage. The flames spread quickly towards the basement and over the stage, burning through the large back doors and charring the exterior of the rear of the premises. Firemen had chopped their way into the building through a side door, after which Feather, armed with hose, entered the place.

OVERCOME BY SMOKE
A moment after entering, during which period he could see nothing because of smoke, he collapsed on the floor. He was alone in the building at the moment.

A second call to fire headquarters brought the pumitor, which was used on the unconscious man. Shortly after, he was revived. Apparently none the worse for his experience.

The alarm was said to have been given by an unidentified person. Ceiling of the place over the stage was completely ruined, as were the wings, a piano, gas stove, furniture and basement.

The plaster covering the rest of the interior collapsed in soggy sheets from water poured into the building.

The Riverdale community hall was not being used, it was learned, and how the fire started could not be determined.

The building was said to be insured for about $2,500. It was erected about 14 years ago.

Allowance Bill To Be Studied By Senate Group

OTTAWA, Aug. 5.—(CP)—The Senate yesterday referred the government's family allowance bill to its banking and commerce committee after hearing opposition to the provision for reduction of allowances to large families.

Speakers who took part in the debate expressed great support for the principle of the measure, but Senator John T. Haig, Liberal Progressive Conservative, leader, said administration of the allowances should be handled by the provinces.

"I favor the principle of this bill, but that's all that can be said in its favor," he said.

Toronto Will Get 350 More Houses

OTTAWA, Aug. 5.—(CP)—Mayor Fred Conboy of Toronto, after meeting cabinet ministers here, announced yesterday that the government will build 350 more houses in Toronto, making a total of 600. He added that 500 of these houses will be allocated to the families of Canadian servicemen. Mayor Conboy said that Munitions Minister Howe "promised to give us 350 houses in addition to the 250 already under construction in Toronto."

Houses for the People

You can't depend on "Free" Private Enterprise to build the 5,000 homes Edmonton needs. Private Enterprise gave us slums while carpenters were on relief rolls. The C.C.F. will make it possible for you to own a home. A C.C.F. Government will not only

LOAN YOU MONEY AT COST

BUT it will develop the timber resources as a Public Enterprise to produce materials for homes. It will acquire sawmills and other plants to process our own distributive system for building supplies. Homes will therefore be built at cost. No one will be permitted to make a profit out of the people's needs. That is the basis of the

Less Rain Likely During This Month

Edmonton weather conditions indicate that in August the average total rainfall is much less than the average of July. The mean temperature for the month, 60 degrees, is only slightly lower than July, which was 62 degrees. The greatest rainfall ever recorded in August was 6.43 inches in 1899 and the least .16 of an inch in 1939.

The normal number of days with thunderstorms is four. Snow has fallen in August. In 1900 one inch fell. Frost is not uncommon but it has never been sufficiently severe to seriously damage gardens. The lowest temperature was 29 degrees in 1909 and 1934. The highest temperature recorded was in 1933 when it was 96 degrees.

The weather forecast for Saturday is "partly cloudy with widely scattered showers this evening; little change in temperature." The maximum temperature Friday was 79 degrees, the minimum 57 degrees, the overnight low 54 degrees and the estimated high today 78 degrees. The temperature at 8:30 a.m. was 60 degrees.

LABOR REPRESENTATION

A MESSAGE from

ELMER E. ROPER
Provincial Leader of the

C.C.F.

TO THE Citizens of Alberta

Dear Fellow Citizens:

As a final message to you from the C.C.F., I must ask you to take a look at the interests opposing the C.C.F. in this election—the oil interests, the power interests, the banking and industrial interests which control the economic life of Canada—and their daily newspaper organs.

Thrown into a panic when in the provincial elections in Ontario and Saskatchewan the C.C.F. won 81 seats while all other parties combined won only 61, these monopolistic interests are now prepared to use any means to stop the C.C.F. in this province.

Imagine their rejoicing, imagine the gloating headlines in their newspapers if the C.C.F. is turned back in Alberta next Tuesday!

To vote against the C.C.F. in this election is to vote with the interests which are opposing the C.C.F. throughout Canada. I cannot believe that the progressive people of Alberta will do that.

The present Alberta government has said that it has gone as fast and as far as it can go in the provincial field. It has no support in the national field. The C.C.F. on the other hand does offer to the people of Alberta in this election a nation-wide program, and the chance to put it into effect in both the national and provincial fields.

Provincial isolation is the greatest possible danger to united progressive national action. Only by national and provincial governments working co-operatively together to implement a national program can we hope to meet effectively the great problems of the post-war years. And the kind of governments we elect in the provinces and in the Dominion in the next year will determine the kind of Canada we will have after the war.

Only by the election of a C.C.F. government on Tuesday can we avoid in this province the evil of provincial isolation and continued conflict for another five years with whatever federal government can be elected in the coming federal election.

It is time to take another step forward in Alberta.

Yours faithfully,
ELMER E. ROPER,
C.C.F. Provincial Leader.

STATE SOCIALISM—STATE MONOPOLY

All power centralized in the political party in office. The people become servants of state bureaucracies which control industry, marketing, wages and employment. All economic activity, individual enterprise and personal initiative stifled.

That's what the C.C.F. stand for. Here is their record:

- Opposed national defence before the war.
- Opposed overseas service in defence of Canada against Nazi aggression.
- Consistently opposed monetary reform in parliament.
- Supported the Rowell-Sirois Report.
- Introduced Bill 37—muzzling freedom of speech.

"These monstrous terms will lay any man open to prosecution. The horrible effect could easily be imagined. It is a reflection on the free citizens of Canada that such a Bill should have reached the floor of the House of Commons."

Alberta's Public Works

No possible function of government can add so disastrously to a provincial debt as a reckless and ill-considered policy of public works. One of the factors that establishes most strikingly the sound and progressive administration of the Manning Social Credit Government is its public works policy.

Here is the vital fact:
Since 1936 public works and road building have been carried on in Alberta entirely without borrowing.

In 1936 the policy of letting out road contracts to private individuals was ended. Borrowing was discontinued and a "pay-as-you-go" system was adopted. To build modern highways, machines were purchased and skilled men employed to run them. Highways were planned and built on the basis of a province-wide program.

Between March 1936 and March 1943, this is Alberta's road-building program:

Graded	751 miles
Grade reconditioned	374 miles
Gravelled	1,686 miles
Surface (asphalt)	715 miles
Seal coat	385 miles

In the matter of district highways and local roads, the policy has been to render every assistance through grants to the municipal and improvement districts of the province. District engineers are employed to help in local engineering problems concerning roads. Here is the progress between 1936 and 1942:

Newly opened roads	2,247 miles
Graded	4,049 miles
Gravelled	837 miles

Between 1941 and 1944, a total of $576,137 was paid to municipal districts in road grants. This present fiscal year, a total of $392,700 is available to municipal districts for this purpose.

In seven years, Alberta's bridge-building record is:

Steel and concrete bridges	170
Timber bridges	1,885
Total bridges built	2,055
Bridges repaired	1,609

This is progress based on sound administration.

It is something for voters to remember when they go to the polls next Tuesday.

Investigation Required

Another fatal street car accident in which one car smashed into the rear of a first one is the second mishap of its kind within a few weeks. Street car accidents have multiplied alarmingly during the past year.

It is reported that an investigation will be made into this particular wreck. What is needed is a broader investigation which will discuss the entire question of street car security in Edmonton.

Everyone is aware that the shortage of men and materials makes it impossible to keep rolling stock in the best condition of repair.

Everyone knows that experienced operators are scarce.

But there is a point beyond which these unavoidable disadvantages cannot be permitted to imperil the public safety.

The street cars are used by numberless children. They are used by useful citizens. Every person carried on those cars is an asset to Edmonton.

It is neither good business nor good ethics to put these people in jeopardy through accidents which might be avoided. What Edmonton people want to know is: is everything possible being done to render these accidents as infrequent as they can be made?

The Stuff of Heroes

Much dubious psychology about fighting men is emerging from World War II. For example, Dr. Edwin G. Zabriskie of New York tells the American Neurological Association that soldiers are returning home on furlough "bitter and resentful" and with a "certain definite letdown from aggressiveness and high morale of the training and actual combat periods."

He adds that "the attempt to recondition and indoctrinate the soldier after his two weeks furlough... is not meeting with unqualified success."

On top of that comes the outlandish theory of two other psychiatrists that "only love makes a good soldier." These two experts say that they have found two types of men especially subject to neuroses: (1) Men who led passive, dependent or sheltered lives, who had spells of depression or blues, fears of the dark as a child, feelings of inferiority; and, (2) Men who were rough and tough on the surface as a means of covering up a chronic defensive reaction.

This well-meaning attempt to grove and blueprint the stuff of heroes, like all generalizations, risks becoming sheer nonsense when backed against the history of this and the last war.

We have known, in both wars, men who confounded this pattern thinking with every act they performed.

First and most important, what evidence is there that the average veteran of this war is embittered? They come home on furlough, if lucky enough to get it from the field of action, and give vent to the frankness of their military calling. What else could the home front expect? Candor should not be mistaken for bitterness.

As for the "dependent lives" and the "rough and tough" specimens, those phenomena are found in any walk of life. We have known fighting men in this war and the last who had come from all extremes of life. We have known men who had never reached adulthood till they joined the brash democracy of the armed forces, yet who profited by their very naivete to become the finest soldiers. And we have known men who concealed tender and human hearts under a brusque exterior because it was their nature to do so.

Canada had half a million men under arms in the last war, and most of them saw active service. Did they, or even a sizeable number of them, come home with these neuroses that too many stray psychiatrists talk about? We know they didn't. They came home to form the backbone of the successful generation which kept this country and this world rolling through the most profound economic convulsion in its history, and then they formed the nucleus of Canada's new fighting forces.

City Planning

John S. Galbraith of the community planning division of the national housing administration has been telling Edmonton's town planning commission something about the modern trends of city development.

He spoke of the tendency towards decentralization in modern cities, of the new conception of land values, of the need for parks in districts which are converting themselves into slums and of the urgent need for constant planning to guide the growth of the community.

Above all, he stressed the necessity for a community planning body which would be a permanent part of municipal government and function in close connection with municipal government.

Mr. Galbraith's remarks should be studied and restudied by every citizen interested in the future of Edmonton. For what he says has a tremendous bearing on the growth and welfare of this community.

Haphazard civic growth is disastrous and costly. It is disastrous because it permits the appearance of slums and degrades the civic spirit. It is costly because it distorts and perverts property values, increases transportation expenses and swallows up huge sums of money in corrective projects.

Planned civic growth is economical and efficient. It enhances the civic spirit—which is the greatest asset any city may have.

A planning control which acts merely in an advisory capacity is not effective because it lacks status. A planning control functioning as an arm of government is both effective and efficient.

What Mr. Galbraith suggests in this regard should receive the deepest consideration of the civic authorities.

They will be shortened if lack of space requires. You must give your name and address. Write only on one side of the paper. Veterans

Editor, Bulletin: I was very glad to read in your issue of July 29, a letter from "Veteran," stating boldly and clearly the status which all our men returning from active service overseas should have in our country.

As "Veteran" points out these men should be "privileged" above all others in our society, by reason of the fact that they have "earned" that privilege by offering their lives for the rest of us.

We cannot honor them too highly. We owe all we have to them! It is about time the public realized this, and I would like to see more letters of this kind in the newspapers.

Returned men are far too modest. It is quite evident they should commence to demand recognition and a fair reward for their service to the country for without them we would have no country.

Editor, Bulletin: Under even date while perusing the editorial page (as usual) I was surprised and pleased to read that gem of philosophy "Easy Citizenship."

The thought, and the manner of expressing it have been in my mind for a number of years and only today have I ever known it to be expressed in public print. And they say we have no "free press."

It is too much to wish that every foreigner reading it (if he would go deep enough to read good things) could understand and appreciate it.

More articles of a similar nature might enlighten the sob sister Canadian.

Dividend

Editor, Bulletin: Those CCF-ers who say a Social Credit dividend cannot be issued until the state owns everything may find some interest in the following bit of history recently dug up by Princeton University.

When Maryland first issued its own money in 1733 most of it was given away—a certain sum to each inhabitant over 15 years of age. This was done so that the new money would be "the more useful to the inhabitants" and so it might be as widely diffused as quickly as possible. The legislature hoped by this means to "remove the difficulties under which the inhabitants had long labored."

In a sense, this was a "social dividend" as advocated by Major C. H. Douglas. From a detailed study of the Maryland policy, the Princeton professor was able to say that, "considering the peculiar benefits to grain and tobacco culture, the conveniences offered to trade, and the faithful redemption of every shilling at face value, it is hardly too much to say that this was the most successful money issued by any of the colonies."

To those who have been so fond of saying that the dividend would "demoralize the people," I would point out that a few years later, when the Bank of England put the squeeze on them, they fought and won the War of Independence. Incidentally, Maryland was the first of the colonies to establish complete religious freedom. Money and freedom are inseparable.

ANOTHER SOCIAL CREDITOR.

CCF Promises

Editor, Bulletin: The CCF-ers are still raving over the Saskatchewan election. They should thank Social Crediters for staying out of the Saskatchewan field and not splitting the vote, thus returning the Liberals. It must also be remembered that the CCF did not get elected on their own policy (socialism) but on the Social Credit policy and platform.

We are told "democracy needs socialism," yet they are running all over Alberta promising us the other fellow's oil wells. Why not drill your own wells, and operate them in opposition to the privately-owned wells and try to undersell them? That would be democracy. But they are howling for power and monopoly, and the destruction of private business, so they can have everything their own way, and double or triple the price of essential things.

The post office is a government monopoly, and they raised the postage from 2c to 4c and we have to like it. The liquor business is a government monopoly; we all remember the time when we bought 26 oz. of good liquor for 75c to $1.50 from private liquor vendors.

Today, under government monopoly, we pay from $5.00 to $10.00, and the quality could not be any purer.

The railway rates on both government and private owned railways is the same, and no doubt if it was not for the private railway the rates would be double, judging by the experience of government monopolies.

At the Regina CCF convention in 1933, the question was asked "What happens if the farmer objects to being owned and controlled and operated by the CCF?" Mr. Angus MacInnis, M.P., answered "We shall have to force them (the farmers) to the socialist view, by the pressure of the economic situation." So you see these gentlemen would starve us into submission, and we are told if necessary use the police and military force.

Ask your CCF speaker for a copy of "Social Planning for Canada." Read pages 222-225-226. Ask him also for a copy of "Democracy Needs Socialism," and read pages 82-83. Both, above books are CCF text books, and used to be sold at all CCF meetings. No doubt the questioner will be told "they are out of print." These two books if you could get them, would tell the story.

Social Credit

Editor, Bulletin: M. J. Coldwell, in an Alberta speech, wanted to know why some Social Credit members of parliament supported his motion for nationalization of the banks. Perhaps some local CCF member will tell us why Mr. Coldwell's party has four policies on the subject.

The CCF leader says that to establish Social Credit, the banks must first be nationalized and nothing else. Premier Douglas of Saskatchewan says that if an industry is open (competitive) there is no need for public ownership, while E. B. Joliffe, CCF leader, says that monopoly must be controlled to save capitalism, and basic CCF textbooks say that to establish Social Credit everything must be nationalized.

The fact is that nothing has to be nationalized, and monopoly would have to be controlled only insofar as excess profits would cause over-expansion of industry. The excess, if any, can be measured and the surplus returned in lower prices to the public.

Under public ownership, the surplus would be grabbed by the party in power and used for political purposes.

Fallacies

Editor, Bulletin: In The Bulletin's comments re the CCF threat of expropriating the oil resources of the province for the public benefit, might I stress certain fallacies in their arguments:

First of all CCF speakers quoting the profits earned by shareholders of companies engaged in the so-called exploitation of the oil fields of this province invariably avoid quoting figures as to the costs of drilling a well or of the huge expenditures necessary for the erection of refining plants necessary to turn the raw material into a commercial product or the cost of maintaining distributing centres to make the article available for the general public.

CCF orators glibly cite the profits made by the big concerns, in particular the Imperial Oil Ltd., as robbers of the Canadian people's heritage. As a matter of fact by the chief source of supply for crude oil as obtained by Imperial Oil Ltd. is in the Republics of Colombia and Peru through its

Motion Savers for Housewives

More Work Can Be Done In Less Time With Less Effort

By MARY ALICE QUAYNE

The problem of being able to do more work in less time and be less tired after the job is finished has at last concerned industrial management specialists. Thanks to the application of their "motion and time studies" to war industries, bombers have rolled off the assembly lines and ships have slid down the ways at rates that no one thought possible before the war.

The war has likewise put a premium on the time and energy consumed in running a home. In the United States last year a grant of money from a general education board made possible the addition of a Home Management Committee to the National Work Simplification Project with its headquarters at one of the universities. After a two week conference last August the home economists who attended returned to their universities to carry out specific motion-and-time studies related to homemaking.

For the purpose of analysis most of these experts have arbitrarily isolated certain repetitive household chores that are usually performed in a habitual way—such as peeling potatoes or ironing a shirt. They often employed scientific measuring instruments. Although such highly scientific studies have produced helpful results, these household efficiency experts agree that the most important part of their job is to show housewives how to make their own motion-and-time studies under home conditions.

Household Factors

The number of people in your family, their hours for school and jobs, the kind of house you live in, and the family traditions (some of which might well be abandoned, while others should be maintained for morale)—these and dozen of other household factors decide which short cuts will be practicable for you.

Most women, while they automatically adopt the quickest, easiest methods of doing some jobs, at the same time unconsciously persist in inefficient methods for others until a job analysis shows up their weaknesses.

The first step in a motion-and-time study is to analyze all the jobs that make up your housekeeping routine. Apply to each of them this general questionnaire:

- (1) What will happen if I don't do it?
- (2) Is it worthy of my time?
- (3) What could I do that is more important?
- (4) Is my way of doing this task merely continuing a family custom?
- (5) Can I cut out some steps, time, stooping and lifting?
- (6) Does this task contribute to actual health and well-being—or to less tangible, but important, family satisfactions—in proportion to the energy required?

In the light of your answers to these, divide the jobs into three classes: (1) Must do; (2) Should do if time permits; (3) Eliminate.

Process Chart

Next step is to tackle each job individually and make what the motion-and-time experts call a "process chart" listing everything you do as you perform the job. It helps to have someone else around to watch you work and write down what you do as you do it. At the same time watch the clock to see how long it takes. When you see all your motions listed on paper, it will be easier to recognize the superfluous ones. The last step, of course, is to work out a new method that cuts down time and motions—then practice it until it becomes as much of a habit as the old way.

Wherever possible, arrange articles in order of use. Stack the dishes in the order you plan to wash them or arrange cooking ingredients in the order in which they are added to a recipe.

For a perambulating job, use a container, tray or cart, to move all the tools from one place to the next. A shopping basket, for instance, is handy for carrying vacuum cleaner attachments, cloths and cleaners; use a tray for setting or clearing the table.

Sit down to work whenever you can and use long-handled tools so that you won't have to bend. Standing requires 8 per cent. more energy than sitting, and bending takes 43 per cent. more energy than standing.

Work from right to left (if you are right-handed) to avoid switching tools from one hand to another.

Work rhythmically, since continuous and circular motions save both time and energy. Remember this when you are vacuuming a rug, polishing windows, putting clothes through the wringer. Use both hands at the same time. This can be done in dusting, or you can dust with the left hand while using the dust mop with the right.

The Loser and the Lost

By J. H. GRAY

When the last German was driven from the fox-holes of Cherbourg by the liberating American army, the correspondents moved in to talk to the people, and to unearth one of the most melancholy commentaries upon the nature of our enemy as has come out of the war.

It is a simple story, but it underlines the human tragedy of broken lives and broken families which so sets this war apart. It is the story of a thousand Russian women who were brought to Cherbourg to do heavy manual work upon the fortifications. They were treated by the Germans as no self-respecting German farmer would treat his cattle. They were sacked for clothes. They were housed in warehouses, subsisted or died on a starvation diet which was supplemented only by what the sympathetic French could smuggle to them.

In the group, the Cherbourgers remembered particularly one young mother who carried her baby with her to work on the fortifications. Where the Russian women came from or where they were taken, or whether they lived or died, nobody in Cherbourg knew.

The story from Cherbourg is sad enough; yet it is but a single episode of a spectacle of infinite scope, infinite cruelty and infinite sadness.

When peace comes again to Europe, some families will be reunited but for millions of families there will be no reunion. The Russian soldiers will return to their villages in search of their wives and children. But their wives and children will not be there for they have been scattered across the face of Europe in the greatest uprooting of mankind ever conceived in human history.

The thousand women of Cherbourg were the wives of Russian men, mothers of Russian children, sisters of Russian brothers. The mystery of their fate will forever cloud the lives of their loved ones. They will live in hope that somewhere, somehow, the lost loved one is alive, and that some day reunion will be joyously held and their hopes will be blighted by the haunting fear that the lost one will never be found.

For the children memories will be deeper. They will never forget the loss of their mother, their sister being trodden into a box car, into a truck or into a car to be taken to no one knows where.

When peace comes again, all Europe will be shaken by the search of the losers for the lost. They will write letters to governments and newspapers asking for information. They will try, in growing desperation and ultimate discouragement, to track down rumors and tenth-hand stories of the whereabouts of the exiles. For some there will be miraculous reunions, but for millions there will be nothing but discouragement.

For the lost who live, an irresistible urge to get home will start a trek that will clog the roads of Europe. For untold millions of Frenchmen, Russians, Norwegians, Czechs and Poles nothing will matter but getting home. They will sweep into cities in great waves of suffering humanity. They will besiege railways. They will wander aimlessly from place to place until the residents are sick of the sight of hungry, ragged, queered and frustrated human beings.

Air Power

Long Range Artillery

By Maj. A. P. de Seversky

When asked by press representatives why we do not use robot aerial bombs against Germany, General Bennett E. Meyers, Chief of the Air Forces Materiel Command, replied in part:

"These are inaccurate weapons, in sharp contrast to our doctrine of precision bombing. If the occasion should arise, we would use them."

Red Stars

Outstanding stars of the Red Army are the two officers pictured above, Nikolai Veronoff, top, and Lt.-Col. Alexander Pokryshkin, Marshal of artillery in the Soviet Supreme Command. Veronoff is called "the man who married a cannon." Devising new techniques which have devastated Nazi Panzer forces, he does not keep his guns at a safe distance behind the lines, but rushes them forward with the first attack waves. Pokryshkin, who wears D.S.M. awarded by President Roosevelt and two Hero of the Soviet Union medals, is highest ranking ace of Red Army and probably of United Nations. Officially credited through March, 1944, with 53 enemy planes shot down, he is reported to have added six to his score since then.

cooled engine and snail's pace of 100 miles per hour, was more efficient than the German robot. This is neither true nor necessary. An older generation may swallow this unthinkingly, but the air-minded youth of this country is too wise to accept such nonsense. Besides, what difference does it make today who invented the gadget first. It is London that is being torpedoes, not Berlin.

Why didn't our Ordnance develop these bombs? Only history will be able to answer that question. Our air forces, having only meagre resources at their disposal to build air power had to invest it in essential equipment. They had to build an air force in being.

The judgment of history, indeed, may be that because Germany squandered its dwindling resources on novelties such as the flying bomb, instead of bolstering its true strength, it finally went down in defeat.

Major and Minor Notes

By John Oliver

OFFICIAL announcement that the Empire theatre, which is being vacated by a United States construction company after 18 months in war service, would be returned to its original role of an entertainment house in time for the autumn season, will be welcome news to theatre-goers and those who patronize a musical entertainment.

In the last decade the number of times the theatre has been opened for musical and dramatic attractions has been limited, and the majority of occasions has been JOHN OLIVER to accommodate a either shown by city organizations, or the Celebrity Series of Concerts sponsored by the Women's Musical Club. However, the theatre also has served as a place in which public meetings have been held, and it has been the scene of other functions and activities, all of which justified the house continuing to function.

The importance of the theatre to this city was emphasized during the 18-month period it was closed to public performances. There was a song popular quite a few years ago entitled "You'll Never Know the Good Fellow I've Been Till I've Gone Away." That was the case with the Empire. It was subjected to considerable criticism when it was operating, but its true worth never was realized until it was unavailable.

It is understood that contracts have been let for the necessary reconditioning, so that it will be ready for the new season. It is to be hoped that it will be possible to enlarge the orchestra pit, even though it might mean taking out a few seats, and drilling out some concrete. The pit will accommodate comfortably, not more than 16 players. As most of the attractions that have played the theatre in recent years have had orchestras considerably larger, the players—usually the double bass and tympani—have overflowed into lower boxes.

In the process of renovation there would be comparatively little extra work involved in enlarging the orchestra pit, and such work would be well justified. The seats have been stored in the balconies and will not take a great deal of time to replace. It will be good to see the Empire back at its normal function, and there is no doubt it will be appreciated more than ever.

Mrs. H. P. Brown, who has been one of this city's most consistently devoted workers on behalf of music won an unusual distinction in recent Toronto Conservatory of Music examinations held here. Her pupils won the highest marks in both vocal and instrumental classes in which they appeared. As it happened both are from rural points, close to this city and close to one another. Both received 87 marks from the adjudicator, Frank Blatchford, and as this was the highest figure obtained in their respective classes, each won a silver medal.

Douglas Stevenson, 12-year-old Clover Bar boy, won in a vocal class and Helen Schroter, 11-year-old Bremner girl, won in her piano grade.

It has been noticed lately that in some quarters attention has been directed to the number of youthful performers and prodigies before the public, and one New York writer has pointed out that comparatively few of the wonder-children become great artists in later years. This of course is a point to remember, and it would be well for all parents, teachers and friends to bear in mind that an early festival, or examination success does not mean that the student is going to be in future years a Paderewski, Kreisler, Crooks or Paganini.

It may be pointed out that infant prodigies always have existed in music, and probably always will. Also, comparable precocity has been achieved in other endeavors. There have been occasions where

World Production Of Wheat Likely Higher This Year

WASHINGTON, Aug. 5.—(AP)—The United States agriculture department reported yesterday that latest prospects indicate world wheat production this year may be moderately above last year, with a large increase in North America more than offsetting prospective decreases in other areas.

Surpluses expected by the world's four major exporting countries—the United States, Canada, Australia and Argentina—will go a long way, the department said, toward meeting world import requirements, unless abnormally large shipments are required by Europe during the 1944-45 season.

The department said European production may be slightly below last year's crop, and below average.

The Bulletin's SPORT SHOW by Hal Dean

SPORTS EDITOR

PERUSAL of the averages published today clearly shows just why the Yanks and Dodgers hold the two premier berths in the current title chase in the Senior Baseball League. The figures furnish ample proof they have more batting punch, quite aside from the fact these two clubs have shown continued improvement in fielding.

Chuck Henderson's squad has held the edge in team hitting all year and the performance of the Dodgers in that respect has been consistent. On June 10 they were batting .259, while June 24 averages showed they were hitting .269. July 5th figure was .258 and today it is down just one point. Respective fielding figures for the same dates are .898, .901, .911 and .914.

Yanks' batting went from .236 to .244 and then dropped back to .219, but since July 15 has jumped up to .245. Their fielding for the four dates are .872, .872, .894 and .906. There has been a vast improvement in the batting of the Signals from their .165 of June 10 to today's .224. Until the last few days, Lieutenant Archer's men were the best fielding club in the league. They started off at .917 and now are at .911. Arrows batting has slipped from .232 to .238 and fielding from .906 to .889.

HOT AROUND THIRD BASE

LESTER NELSON'S sensational batting has been an outstanding feature in recent games—so has the fielding of Columbus Burchfield, of the Yanks. These two third-sackers stole the show on Thursday night and it was no flash in the pan either.

Nelson batted .353 for his first four games, then shaded off to .313, but since July 15 has risen to .359. Jim Kelly, last year's champion also has a private campaign under way and after slumping to .244 on July 15 zoomed to .315 in three weeks.

Leaders in the runs-batted-in column are: Manuel Dorsey 16, Ralph Morgan 15, George Green and Harry Baldwin 13, Mel Ottom, Gino Valenti and Al Goodrich with 12, Doug Roush has 11 and Dave Brockie, Bob Sawyer, Jim Junker, Jim Kelly and Jack McGill one each.

Bert Culver is high for bases on balls with 19. Next come George Green 18, Joe Shandro 1, Jack McGill 12, Harry Baldwin 10, Doug Roush 10, and C. Burchfield 9. Mel Ottom is fourth in base stealing with eight.

U.S. Club Shades Navy 3-2 to Take Northern Playoff Two Straight

Officers Reach Provincial Fastball Finals

Mike Milner Adds Another Win to List

It was no easy task for the USAAF Officers at Kingsway Park Friday night, but a run in the eighth inning by star chucker Mike Milner gave them a 3-2 victory over HMCS Nonsuch and the northern Alberta senior men's fastball championship. They won the first game of the best of three series Thursday night 5-0.

The deciding marker came on Milner's single to centre field, an error and a two bagger to right field by catcher Andy Konopka, after two were gone in the second last session.

The Sailors came up with two runs in the opening inning on three singles, two passed balls and an error to take over command. They appeared headed for a triumph that would tie the series, but Milner, who shut out the Navy-men with a no-hit performance the previous night, settled down to pitch another rousing game and held the loser scoreless for the remainder of the game as his club gained the victory.

Milner accounted for two of the Officers' runs himself and was responsible for the other counter being driven in.

Al Young, who also turned in a nice effort on the mound, shut out the winners on two singles for five frames, but the Officers got to him for a double by Paul Leteckie and a single by Milner, in the sixth, and this, combined with an error at first, produced the Americans first two runs. This tied the score 2-2 and then Milner scored in the eighth to win his own game.

Milner, although allowing one more hit than Young, had the better of a real pitching duel. He struck out 10 and only walked one while Young had to be content with four strikeouts.

The Officers now play Calgary Purty 99 on Sunday in the opening game of the Alberta final.

Twin Features Highlight Program

Over 60 Horses Nominated Opening Race Card Today

With more than 60 horses nominated for the opening card at the Exhibition track today racing returns to Edmonton for a ten-day session of the sport of kings.

Twin features highlight the opening program—seven races and there are three distance tests of a mile and one-sixteenth, three races at six and a half furlongs and a seven-furlong race for the thoroughbreds.

All races were well filled as horsemen awaited the starting signal, but the Alberta Handicap, which drew 13 thoroughbreds, promises to be a real test of the top weighted Mr. Ever, the Alberta Derby winner, Pagan Star, and the consistent Amsterdams, is classed with the best handicap horses in the west.

Ever Star gets in with 105 pounds, both Ebony Moon and Mistletree are being asked to carry 109 while Sweep Lad will be saddled with 111 pounds and Single Claim will have 112.

Also eligible for the Alberta Handicap are Noble King, Lovers Lass, Calla Donna, K. Cookie and Pagan Pilot.

Western race fans have always liked distance events and the third, fourth and sixth will be at a mile and one-sixteenth. The sixth—the Corinthian, claiming handicap—is the secondary feature on the card and has drawn six seasoned campaigners. Two Valinda horses, Valinda Bob and Valinda Sun and Blue Suit, Pepper Pot and Flying Buck, rate so closely that there is only two pounds difference in weight assigned to each. Some Yank drew the outside position and 109 pounds.

FIRST RACE AT 2:30 P.M.
Pagan Pilot will operate during the ten days and the post time for the first race on the two Sunday cards is 2:30 while twilight racing will be in order during week days with the first race going to the post at 5 p.m. The daily double wager will be on the first and second races and the popular quinella on the seventh race each day.

The meeting is under the management of R. James Speers with Charles F. Roe as assistant manager.

George W. Schilling is presiding steward and racing secretary and honorary stewards are Lee Wil-

Provincial Meet at Clarke Stadium Monday Afternoon

With over 70 contestants from all parts of the province taking part, the Alberta interscholastic track and field meet, sponsored by the Edmonton Girls' Athletic Club, is being held at Clarke Stadium on Monday afternoon with the first event starting at 1:00 o'clock.

There will be a wide variety of events, ranging from the 60 metres run for girls under 16 to the mile relay for boys under 18. The official opening will be made at 3:00 o'clock by J. P. Page who will make a short address on sports.

Probably the most noted athlete competing will be Edith Skitch, a local girl. She is the holder of four junior girls' provincial records—high jump, running broad jump, 80 metres hurdles and the 60 metres run. She will be competing in all these events plus the 100 yards dash, but is entered as an intermediate.

There are six divisions—junior, intermediate and senior in both boys and girls classes and there are a total of 55 events listed on the big program.

Pounding Through the Stretch

After an absence of two years, racing returns to Edmonton today with the opening race of the 10-day meeting scheduled for 2:30 p.m. Above is an exceptionally fine action shot taken by Alf Blyth Studios immediately prior to the finish of the fifth race (Jasper Purse) at the Exhibition Grounds here on July 15, 1942. Green Turban (left), owned by Bob Edwards, of Edmonton, is shown coming out from the pack to take a thrilling stretch duel with Marion Somers, owned by W. H. Miller, also of Edmonton. Pat Craig was third. There were eight horses in the race—note one has all four feet off the ground. This photograph subsequently was hung in the international salon, in exhibitions in Saint Louis, Missouri and Toledo, Ohio, as well as in Chicago, Springfield, Mo., and Hamilton, Ont. Incidentally, Green Turban, who returned $29.65 for nose duets in this race, is entered in the third event on today's card—also at 1 mile and sixteenth.

Beau Jack Wins Over Montgomery To Square Score

NEW YORK, Aug. 5.—(AP)—Beau Jack piled up an early lead Friday night and staved off a late finish by the New York lightweight champion, Bob Montgomery, to win a split 10-round decision before a crowd of 15,822 in Madison Square Garden. Beau Jack weighed 138½, Montgomery 137½.

Montgomery's title was not at stake in the fight, which was put on with army sanction for the benefit of war bond sales. The "gate" was $35,864,900 in war bonds (material value), the greatest boxing gate in history.

It was the fourth meeting between Jack and Montgomery, both of whom have held the lightweight title twice, and it evened the decisions between them. They now have fought 55 rounds, and no knockdown has been scored.

Judge Frank Forbes saw last night's encounter as an even affair, giving each boy five rounds. Judge Bill Healy gave Beau Jack six, Montgomery three, and called one even, while Referee Billy Cavanaugh gave Jack six, Montgomery two and called two even.

For their four fights, the total round vote now stands Beau Jack 78, Montgomery 77, and 10 even.

John Roukema of Paterson, N.J., Middle Atlantic and Silver Skates speed skating champion, has missed out on several important titles because he is deeply religious and refuses to compete on Sundays when most of the big events are held. He is recognized as the fastest skater in the east.

NEW YORK, Aug. 5.—Lem Franklin's death in New Jersey from ring injuries should serve as a grim warning to boxing commissions throughout the United States that all participants in this dangerous sport should be subjected to a thorough, rigid physical examination.

Boxing is the most dangerous of all sports, even for young men in perfect physical condition, because the delicate brain is subjected to almost constant punishment in training sessions and in combat. Even the perfectly conditioned can suffer quick death—like Luther McCarty—when the delicate brain is subjected to almost constant punishment in training sessions and in combat. Even the perfectly conditioned can suffer quick death—like Luther McCarty—when the delicate brain is subjected to almost constant punishment in training sessions and in combat.

If these hazards confront a boxer in peak shape, imagine the risk that one takes when he enters the ring "washed-up"—with his reactions dulled by previous head injuries or by illness or dissipation. To prevent tragedy from stalking these unfortunate, every boxing commission has its examining physician or physicians—experts of the physical check-up who protect the unfit from being killed or permanently injured: even though the unfit are ready to gamble their lives, their eyes and their sanity for dollars.

WAS DECLARED FIT

LEM FRANKLIN, Chicago Negro heavyweight, died Thursday at Newark, from injuries suffered when knocked out by Larry Lane on the night of July 24. Events leading up to the bout would indicate that Franklin was unfit when he entered the ring, although John J. Hall, state athletic commissioner for New Jersey, denies this; and the report of the autopsy likewise discounts the unfitness suspicion.

Many managers and trainers suspected that there was "something wrong" with Franklin before he accepted the Newark match. In fact, Willie Stevens, boxing expert of the New York Sunday Enquirer, wrote that if Franklin went through with his proposed come-back plans, "something might happen to him."

Franklin's manager, Jack Hurley, had forced the big negro to retire last August for the evasive reason: "I knew he wasn't getting any place." Which was a polite way of saying that Lem was through, washed up.

LAUNCHED CAMPAIGN

TWO weeks before the fatal Newark bout, Franklin launched his campaign with a five-round knockout over Colan Chaney at Chicago. Hurley was unimpressed because Franklin had been floored and in trouble in the first round. Hurley permitted the Newark match with the understanding that it was to be Franklin's last fight. It was Franklin who died as the result of brain concussion hemorrhages.

The autopsy reported no signs of old blood clots from previous head injuries. Perhaps there were none there. If old clots were present, they should have betrayed themselves during the examination preceding the bout. Usually old clots provide tell-tale tales that even the layman can see—shuffling feet, twitching face—muscles and wooden-tipped speech.

In the somewhat similar case of heavyweight Ernie Shaf, who died in 1933 after being knocked out by big Primo Carnera, the autopsy revealed old brain injuries, although New York commission physicians had passed him. Franklin may have been slowed up for other reasons than head injuries. But whatever the reasons, he was a man considered washed up by his manager—the man who should have known his condition best. And he was passed into the ring by the New Jersey examination, and he died from ring injuries. True, the same thing might have happened to him had he been in perfect shape. But somehow, it seems that our protective arrangements failed Franklin somewhere along the line.

Gordon Maltzberger has relieved for the White Sox 34 times this season.

Officers Play Calgary Twice Here Tomorrow

The USAA Officers, winners of the northern Alberta senior men's football crown meet Calgary Purty 99 at Kingsway Park Sunday afternoon starting at 2:00 o'clock in the opening game of the provincial final. They will play a double-header on Sunday.

The remaining games of the series will be played in Calgary next week-end.

The Officers just knocked out Navy last night and are hot on the trail to the championship. They will undoubtedly supply stiff opposition for anything offered by the southern city. They have garnered two replacements, one a pitcher to aid Mike Milner in handling the Officers' hurling chores. He is August Wullenwerber, Jr., who has just recently returned from the north and is said to have noted ability as a chucker. The other replacement is Dick Trippel.

Other provincial football play-down games are arranged as follows:

Juniors—Series will likely be played here over week-end with first game starting at 8:30 o'clock tonight at Kingsway—Red Deer Sea Cadets vs. South Side Athletics.

Senior girls' provincial final—First game here next week-end with series to finish up at Calgary the following week-end—Army and Navy Pals vs. Calgary Chinooks.

Intermediate men, north semi-finals—Swifts and Westsiders should finish series here before Wednesday, August 9; Alx and Camrose should finish series at Alx by same date.

Garneau to Hold Tennis Tourney

The Garneau Tennis Club is holding its annual tournament this year commencing Saturday, August 12 at 2:30 p.m. Keen interest has been shown in this event for some time now and a large entry is expected by the committee in charge.

Entries close on Wednesday, August 9 at 6 p.m. and the first draws will appear in next Friday's papers.

TODAY'S MESSAGE

By REV. MURDOCH MACKINNON, M.A., D.D.
Robertson United Church, Edmonton

"The Sound of the Silver Trumpets"

THERE is a legend concerning Lucifer and his expulsion from heaven on the occasion of his insubordination and revolt. "What is it that you missed most of all?" he was asked. "The sound of the silver trumpets in the morning." It will be a sorry day when the voice of song and the spirit of joy pass out of life. The war failed to usher in this day. Men went forth to battle with the songs of good cheer upon their lips, and their friends at home encouraged one another to keep the home-fires burning.

But what the war failed to do, a condition of unemployment and depression may succeed in bringing about. And it should be the set purpose of every one to prevent its being brought about. To be hopeful when life flows on like a song, is one thing; to be patient, confident and even joyful when everything goes dead wrong, is a different matter. The song that rings forth from the heart overflowing with joy is welcome, but the songs that issue from the darkness of the night and the darkness of prison cells are thrice welcome because they betray the unconquerable spirit of man that can soar above outward circumstances and transform the very darkness of the night and the deprivations of prison life into elements of harmony and song.

"Respect all such as sing when all alone," says Browning. What a singer he was himself, rugged and uneven though some of his lines were; and what an optimist in the face of the most tragic scenes of earth. We must needs catch something of his spirit at such a time as this, the spirit which makes the worst turn the best to the brave, the spirit which insists that a sun will pierce the thickest cloud earth ever stretched, the spirit which recognizes that the way of discipline and apparent failure is the only sure way to final triumph.

Why did God make the lark, ethereal minstrel, pilgrim of the sky? It must have been with a view to reminding us that when night is at its darkest, morning is not far distant. Or was it to show us a type of the wise who soar but never roam? Whatever the express purpose may have been, we can say with certainty that the skylark would have been an impossibility except in a world at whose heart there is a spirit of joy and gladness. We can understand the psalmist better when we think of the skylark:

"All people that on earth do dwell,
Sing to the Lord with cheerful voice."

We can face our problems better and go forth to meet the sternest tests when we recall that Jesus spoke much of joy when the occasion seemed least to call it forth and that on the eve of His betrayal His voice blended with that of His disciples in a triumphant song of praise and thanksgiving: "And when they had sung an hymn they went out unto the mount of Olives." When His joy is made full in us we shall be able to see the place and purpose of life's frustrations as well as life's achievements and our hearts shall be attuned to greet the unseen with a cheer. Be of good courage, I have overcome the world.

836 Votes in Two Days at Advance Poll

Indicative of high interest in the Aug. 8 election, advance polling in Edmonton in the last two days has broken all records, soaring to a total of 836 votes, with a third day's ballots still to be cast.

Friday's advance voters numbered 428, exceeding by 20 those coming in on Thursday, opening day of the advance poll.

The advance voting will conclude Saturday at 10 p.m. Polls are open from 2 to 5 p.m., and from 7 to 10 p.m., at headquarters of H. H. Crawford, city returning officer, 8632 Jasper avenue.

Revision of voters' lists for the city will add well over 1,500 names to the list, it was estimated Saturday morning. Revision has been continuing all week and concludes at 4 p.m. today.

Sunday the returning officers' staff must add by hand to the printed voters' list all names accepted in revision. The task entails writing approximately 1,500 names in 300 lists to be sent to various city polls. The printed list now contains 82,166 names.

There are 143 polling stations in the city, including advance poll headquarters. Of this number, only 12 are single polls. Nineteen are triple, requiring three ballot boxes, while 111 are double. A total of 291 ballot boxes will be used at all polling stations.

Plan to Readjust Crowded Air Waves

WASHINGTON, Aug. 5. — (AP) — The air is getting so crowded with radio waves that an international conference has been called to organize frequencies for more efficient post-war use. The over-crowding of the ether came out in connection with a state department announcement yesterday that representatives of the international radio industry in the United States, about 600 firms, had been invited to a meeting here August 11-12 to consider the United States government's proposals for reallocating frequencies.

Man Loses Life, One Seriously Burned in Fire

One man is dead and another not expected to live, at Vilna hospital, where they were taken suffering from severe burns after being trapped in a burning house at Downing, according to RCMP.

The dead man is Mike Lewicki, 24 years old, of Downing. The other for whom little hope is held out, is Bill Pashishnyk, 28, also of Downing. Both are married men.

RCMP at Smoky Lake, investigating the tragedy, learned that the two men, interested in renting a farm, had called Tuesday afternoon at the home of a farmer named Pobulan.

SMOKE IS SEEN

Shortly after their arrival there, smoke was seen issuing from the farm house, and, anxious to give assistance to saving the place, both men rushed into the building.

As they entered, the door slammed shut, trapping them inside. It was a matter of minutes before they could get out and by that time the clothing of both was aflame.

Outside, unsuccessful efforts were made to beat out the flames and, still burning, they were carried to a well where water was poured on them.

Badly burned, they were taken to Vilna hospital, where Lewicki died about 8 p.m. His companion, Pashishnyk, in serious condition, was not expected to recover. Investigations are continuing.

The Inquiring Reporter

THE QUESTION
What is your reaction to hearing that a 31-year-old record for building permits here was shattered by July figures?

THE ANSWERS
E. W. S. KANE, K.C., barrister: It is a most healthy sign. I feel that more than ever, people realize that this city is in a situation that will enable it to go forward steadily and rapidly. And when there is more business and increasing population there is bound to be more building.

DONALD DEWAR, Macdonald hotel: It is a splendid thing to know that building is as brisk as it is. I am sure that were materials available there would be even more. In any case it is a sure sign that this city's future is assured.

DENNIS FILLMORE, salesman: I was surprised to hear it, but there is no doubt that it is an unfailing sign that Edmonton is well on the way to fulfilling all the promise of development that has been forecast.

Lutheran Church Said Most Active

The Lutheran church has the reputation of being the most active in spiritual ministry to the armed services. It was stated by Dr. Dandenfeldt, chairman of the Army and Navy Commission, when he addressed the Luther League conference being held here.

"The response of the men to the services of the chaplains has been remarkably good. A survey has shown that attendance at military chapels is three times greater than at civilian chapels," he said.

The speaker said the Lutheran church enjoys the confidence and goodwill of the war departments at Washington and Ottawa and said there are 213 chaplains on all the battle fronts.

"These men are literally wearing themselves out," he said. "Some of them have conducted as many as 75 divine services per month."

Other speakers at the conference included the Rev. R. Meinzen of the Canadian office of the Army and Navy Commission; the Rev. W. C. Elfert, Leduc; the Rev. C. C.

McKenney On Bridge

By WILLIAM E. MCKENNEY
America's Card Authority

The chance of any foursome of bridge players getting identical hands, suit for suit and spot for spot, is roughly one in 635,300,000. The chance of any player getting two hands exactly alike is one in 157,800,000 or thereabouts. Yet Mrs. Myrtle Glenn, who conducts duplicate games at the Strathmore-Vanderbilt Country Club at Manassas, L.I., writes me that the first of these improbabilities occurred at a recent game of hers. To prove it she sends in the hand with the verifying signatures of the 12 ladies who played in the game.

High score was made by a micron who opened with three no trump as dealer, and when her partner bid four, she stretched a bit to six. The opening heart lead was won by declarer, who then led a diamond to dummy and followed with the spade nine. East covered with the jack, South won and again entered dummy with a diamond to take a spade finesse. East covered the seven with the eight and the ten won. South then cashed the ace and king of diamonds and ace of hearts, and led the queen of clubs, which West won. A club was returned, dummy's king won, the losing club was discarded on the good heart, and dummy's last spade was led and finessed, the five winning. The ace gave South the twelfth trick.

DOROTHY DIX SAYS—

First Aid to Prosperity Is Spur to Ambition

Husband's Value Wife's Worth; Bible Says That Price of Good Wife Is Above Precious Rubies

How much is a wife worth? The Bible says that the price of a good wife is above rubies. All men, however, do not put the same value on brides, for the other day a sailor flatly refused to pay $3.50 for a marriage license on the grounds that he was not going to be overcharged.

Inasmuch as the O.P.A. has not gotten around to rationing wives and the supply exceeds the demand, it is somewhat difficult to put a ceiling on them. But while we are waiting for Mr. Bowles to take the matter up and settle it, it may be loosely said that a wife is worth to her husband just whatever he thinks she is. For, curiously enough, a wife's intrinsic worth has nothing to do with the way her husband values her. Some of the poorest wives in the world are the most cherished, and some of the best are thrown out on the scrap pile.

So, wives, being a matter of taste with men, it is impossible to put any fixed price upon their heads, nor does any man know when he marries what he is getting in a wife. He may have drawn the capital prize. He may have gotten the booby one. Nobody denies that marriage is a chancy business, that we go into it at our own risk.

The Biblical definition of the high-priced wife is one "who looketh well to the ways of her husband and catcheth not the bread of idleness, and who doeth good and not evil to her husband all the days of her life." And that rating still goes. For, no matter what other charms and virtues a woman may have, if she isn't a good housekeeper and a thrifty manager and easy to live with, she is a poor investment as a wife.

But, aside from her utilitarian qualities, a wife possesses certain other attributes that make her invaluable to her husband, even if he doesn't recognize them. One is that she is a first aid to prosperity. She is a spur in his side to do the best that is in him. Few men ever achieve any notable success until after they get married. It is only when a man has a wife and children to support that he gets out and hustles. Also, a wife is a man's only protection against his grafting relatives. Every bachelor is the foredoomed victim of his family who think that as he has no children of his own to support, he might as well support theirs.

A wife is an asset as a safety valve. Being able to vent on his wife all the suppressed temper and nerves and frustration that he varied not display in public, saves many a man from a mental blowup, or losing his job. Nor can the worth of wives as press-agents be computed in dollars and cents, for when a wife sings her husband's praise she carries conviction. People think she knows him.

And, finally, how priceless is a wife who tells her husband's white lie for him; who writes his letters to his mother for him; who does all of his social chores, and who stands between him and bores and generally greases the skids of life for him!

This is why it is impossible to put a price tag on wives, but it explains why widowers are nearly always in such a hurry to re-marry.

Personal Health Service

By WILLIAM BRADY, M.D.

ARTERIOSCLEROSIS

Arteriosclerosis or cardiovascular disease begins in the intima—the lining of the arteries which is constantly bathed in blood. If the blood contains a certain amount of alcohol much of the time it is inevitable that the delicate endothelial cells which chiefly compose the intima must suffer damage. Damage to these cells excites the middle coat of the artery or arteriole, composed mainly of involuntary muscle fibres, to contract, and that raises blood pressure, etc.

Alcohol is of course not the only thing that may thus do harm to the intima and excite contraction or restriction of the finer distal or terminal arterial branches. Tobacco is notorious for this or similar action—as in Burger's disease, medically known as thromboangiitis obliterans. Most physicians insist the patient with this trouble in the legs stop smoking. Whether Dr. Burger (Leo Burger, M.D., Los Angeles) himself permits patients to smoke at all, I do not know. But we know that tobacco smoke has this effect—it tends to constrict the arterioles. Most physicians forbid patients with angina pectoris to smoke. Some physicians, however, doubt that tobacco smoking is an important causative factor of CVD unless it is excessive, and permit patients to indulge moderately, merely urging them to smoke thin rather than thick cigars, long-stem rather than short-stem pipe, after meals rather than before or during meals, slowly rather than fast, never while working or playing but only while relaxing.

The very fact that old age, senility or CVD creep upon the individual so gradually tends to encourage him to do nothing about it. As long as he feels pretty fair, even if he discovers sometimes that he is no longer as young as he fondly imagined himself to be, he likes to believe there is no sense in spending his time or money for a health examination by his own doctor. Perhaps he is abetted in this do-nothing course by passing a life insurance examination—he fails to consider that the life insurance examiner merely determines whether the applicant has any organic disease which might finish him off before he has paid the

FERTILIZER DOES NOT ALWAYS MAKE PLANTS GROW BETTER

Many gardeners and farmers seem to think that they can spread any kind of fertilizer around on the ground and all the plants will grow to be giants. This is all wrong, scientists say, for a substance that is food for one plant may be poison for another; and too much of any plant food may kill the plants off. In Chile, where most of our nitrate fertilizers come from, there are no living plants in the region near the nitrate deposits. Each kind of plant requires its own type of fertilizer, and in its own amount. Fertilizer can be harmful, as well as helpful, to growing plants.

Reveals Air Route

SYDNEY, Aug. 5.—(CP)—Hudson Fysh, managing director of Qantas Empire Airways, yesterday revealed that Australia has for more than a year been operating a regular air service from northern Australia to Ceylon, providing the only air link between the Commonwealth and India. Mr. Fysh said the route is over 3,600 miles of Indian Ocean and is "a vital part of the Allied war transport system."

"Shouldn't you wait and see if there'll BE any helicopters next year?"

Your Baby And Mine

By MYRTLE MEYER ELDER

From out of the huddle of any neighborhood play-yard there emerges the gem of a beneficial experience for any child, and that is the ability to get along with other children.

No child learns this painlessly. A mother cannot send her smiling child out to play with other small girls and boys and expect that the smiles will remain indefinitely. The small babies try to get the best of her child. The bossy children want to do all the leading. The aggressive children take advantage of the submissive ones.

In every neighborhood there will be children a mother does not like, yet who insist on making her play yard their rallying point, or who lead her fascinated children into adventures she may have forbidden them.

This is only to say that the playground, and the small children one finds there, are life in miniature and life is never perfect. But out of its imperfections comes wisdom. The timid rabbit of a boy, whose parents bewail and who let him cry out his woes on their shoulders, are doing him less of a favor than if they said briskly, "If you run after the boys, instead of running away from them, they'll turn and run in the opposite direction. You encourage them to taunt you when you won't show fight."

When Miss Bosay Allen runs home crying because none of the children will play with her, she has to be made to understand that no one wants to play who is never allowed to lead. Followers soon get bored, even if Allen is full of bright ideas which she wants to carry out in her own way.

No child can learn this by playing alone. Then he is master of everything. His mother is too willing a slave and too apathetic an opponent. He needs children to buck up against, to fight, to argue, to lead, to follow, in order to get a complete picture of what life means in any social group.

The sheltered child, whose companions are carefully chosen and whose play life is sternly supervised, is the one to be pitied, not the child who cries because everything doesn't go his way. In time the child who plays with all kinds of children and learns to take the treatment he gets, tempers his selfish ways to the herd and becomes a socialized being.

Our leaflet, "Children's Quarrels" may be had by sending a self-addressed envelope with your request for it to Myrtle Meyer Elder, in care of this newspaper.

Cold shrimp salads make substantial main dishes for hot weather dinners. They contain first-rate protein and are easy to serve. Here's a suggestion for a hot night cold buffet from J. J. Astoria's, chef of a popular hotel.

The least we can give our soldiers is Honesty

THE most cruel thing we can do to our soldiers and war workers is to fool them about their future. Much as we like to give it, much as the heroes among them might deserve it—they are not coming back to a life of ease. The least we can do for them is to be honest.

Nobody in this world gets paid for long except out of what he produces. You build automobiles, I make shoes, he raises wheat—and we exchange with each other. (That, shorn of all the fancy words, is All there is to wages.)

The more we make and so add to the pool, the more we will all have, to divide. That is why every man and woman who does less than his best is fooling himself and harming you.

From all we hear about our fighting men, they want opportunity, not eyewash. And if they tackle their post-war jobs with the skill and determination they're showing today, they'll have us all jumping to keep pace with them. We'd better get into the habit now.

Action by Govt. To Assist Jews Urged in House

OTTAWA, Aug. 5. — (CP) — Prompt action to relieve the plight of Jews in Hungary was urged last night in the Commons by three members of parliament.

During the debate on external affairs Arthur Roebuck (L-Toronto Trinity), Rev. Dan McIvor (L-Fort William), and Stanley Knowles (CCF-Winnipeg North Centre) asked the Canadian government to seek action to allow refugee Jews to enter Palestine.

Mr. Knowles said there should be immediate reconsideration of restrictions applied by the British government in a white paper of 1939.

Prime Minister Mackenzie King said he had placed representations made by Mr. Knowles before the recent Prime Ministers' conference in London, but he was not at liberty to make public discussions at the conference.

Unanimous Opinion Is That Commons To Adjourn Aug. 12

OTTAWA, Aug. 5. — (CP) — It seemed to be the almost unanimous opinion on Parliament Hill last night that parliament would adjourn Aug. 12. In fact some members were expressing the view that the government would call for adjournment on that date whether the business was concluded or not.

There are three principal debates yet to be launched, one on housing, one on mustering out allowances to members of the armed forces when demobilization comes and the committee report on the amendments to the Bank Act which extends the charters of the commercial banks.

There is a great bulk of estimates yet to be passed, but few are contentious.

Vancouver School Is Well Equipped

Crofton House on the wooded slopes of West Point-Gray, Vancouver, is a school in a country setting, offering all the advantages of a city education. As it is an accredited High School, girls completing satisfactorily twelfth grade work can be recommended for admission to any university in Canada. The fact that, of the ten who were recommended last year, the eight attending the University of British Columbia obtained honors in their first year shows the soundness of their preparation. In the well-equipped laboratory and modern library girls are encouraged to work independently, while in the Home Economics Department they are trained in practical household arts.

Special facilities are offered to junior boarders. Owing to the increased number of applicants, the school has acquired for younger girls a new property at 2751 West 41st Avenue, a couple of blocks from the main building. Its healthy location, beautiful gardens and sunny dormitories make it an ideal home for juniors, who are under the immediate supervision of a specially-trained matron.

WHERE IS THERE A 7,000,000 PROFIT?

PRODUCE THE PROOF:

The C.C.F. has challenged the Alberta Petroleum Association to produce the Proof of its "Statements of Fact" on Oil published recently in the Alberta Newspapers.

All Statements made by the A.P.A. are backed up by detailed analysis of Oil industry development, disbursements and income. Lack of space prohibits publication of all these details, but the A.P.A. is quite prepared to meet with an accredited Representative of the C.C.F. and representatives of other political groups contesting the Election and at that time present any additional details on Oil they might desire.

At the same time, the C.C.F. should present the proof for statements on Oil being circulated by its Candidates and Representatives.

NOTE:

The Financial Statements of the 42 Companies which show that in their latest year under review, they wrote off Gross income a total of $4,899,942 in Depreciation and Depletion. These write-offs, contrary to the C.C.F. statement, are not a part of Net Profit. They represent Allowances for Return of Capital invested in Producing Wells and in Equipment, and are similar to the depreciation allowed the owner of any equipment which wears out and declines in value in process of time. Such Allowances halt when cost has been returned.

Alberta Petroleum Association

FACTS VS. FANTASY

In a Newspaper Advertisement on August 2nd the C. C. F. Declares:

"According to the 'Survey of Canadian Oils' published by the Financial Post, twenty of the companies exploiting Alberta oil and natural gas resources in 1942 earned for their shareholders in Net Profits and Depreciation reserves the sum of $7,000,000. In the same year the revenue of the Government from these Resources was $843,000. After expenses of Administration were paid, the province got about $700,000, or TEN CENTS FOR EVERY DOLLAR TAKEN BY THE OIL COMPANIES."

THESE ARE THE FACTS:

Analysis of the Financial Statements in the same "Survey of Canadian Oils" of all Companies deriving their Revenue from production of oil in Alberta shows that:

23 Companies showed a Net Profit after Taxes and Depreciation.
19 Companies showed a Net Loss after Taxes and Depreciation.

TOTAL NET PROFIT from the 23 Companies $2,471,399
TOTAL NET LOSS from the other 19 Companies 715,487

NET PROFIT from All of the 42 Companies amounted to $1,755,912

TOTAL INCOME TAX to the DOMINION GOVERNMENT (from the 42 Companies for Year under Review) $1,213,726

TOTAL ROYALTY & RENTALS RETURNS to ALBERTA GOVERNMENT:

Year Ended March 31st, 1942 $1,064,847
Year Ended March 31st, 1943 1,123,474

Average Yearly Return to Province $1,098,910

Clematis Most Popular Climber Plants Need Rich Soil And Adequate Support For Vines

Clematis need a rich, well-drained friable soil to which a liberal application of peat moss is most welcome. Bonemeal and well-rotted manure are preferred to any commercial fertilizer. Work this into the soil and if your soil is too much on the acid side, then add a little lime. Nearly neutral soil is considered ideal.

Clematis prefer a partially shaded spot. The lower stems must be flowered kinds please us with their curiously formed flowers. Clematis Henry and Jackmanni, the first white and the second purple, are the most commonly planted. The variety paniculata is lovely, a species of white, fragrant flowers.

Among the better large-flowered varieties, I recommend Elsa Spaeth, a true blue clematis, most profuse in flower from July to September. Bell of Woking, an eight-foot English hybrid, whose double flowers range from pale bluish mauve to silver grey, adds color to the garden in June and July.

Another eight-footer, Crispin King, is truly spectacular, its vinous red flowers with brownish anthers often attaining a diameter of six to seven inches. The blooming period is from June to September. Small flowered varieties include Montana rubens, blooming in late May and June. Its flowers are rosy-red, changing to deep, clear pink as they expand. A splendid yellow, tangulica obtusiuscula, starts blooming in late June and continues through August.

Post-War Plumbing Will Be Practical

A continual improvement in the beauty of plumbing fixtures is envisioned for the post war world but the householder who is waiting for drastic changes is doomed to disappointment.

A consensus of various authorities in both the United States and Canada agrees that while planning may be better, showers may be more plentiful, other items not now included, such as downstairs lavatory may be added, there is little likelihood of major structural and material changes in bathroom and other plumbing fixtures.

"Remember," said one authority interviewed by the Institute, "most of the uses to which the new materials are being put are new uses—airplanes, radios, electronics—facilities which are extremely modern in their invention and application. But plumbing is the science of getting water where it is wanted and how it is wanted and then getting it away again. And this science is almost as old as man. While everyone interested in the progress of the plumbing industry is watching all new developments carefully, it stands to reason that in a field which has been experimenting for all these centuries, new and radical change is unlikely. The reason is that most of the things which will basically improve plumbing have already been thought of and are now in use. The biggest post war change that is likely to come to plumbing is that more of it is likely to be used."

So go ahead and plan your post war bathroom now, without the need to wait and see whether your next door neighbor has a transparent, tubular-lit, radio controlled, plastic, collapsible bath tub. He won't!

Reseeding of bare and thin spots with Red Top and Perennial Rye grass in equal proportions, at the rate of 1/2 pound per 100 square feet, will produce quick growth. Lawns should be given a second application of fertilizer at this time, about 1 pound to each 100 square feet. Rake the fertilizer into the surface of the soil with a lawn broom and water immediately to prevent burning. Feeding at this time will build up resistance to summer heat waves.

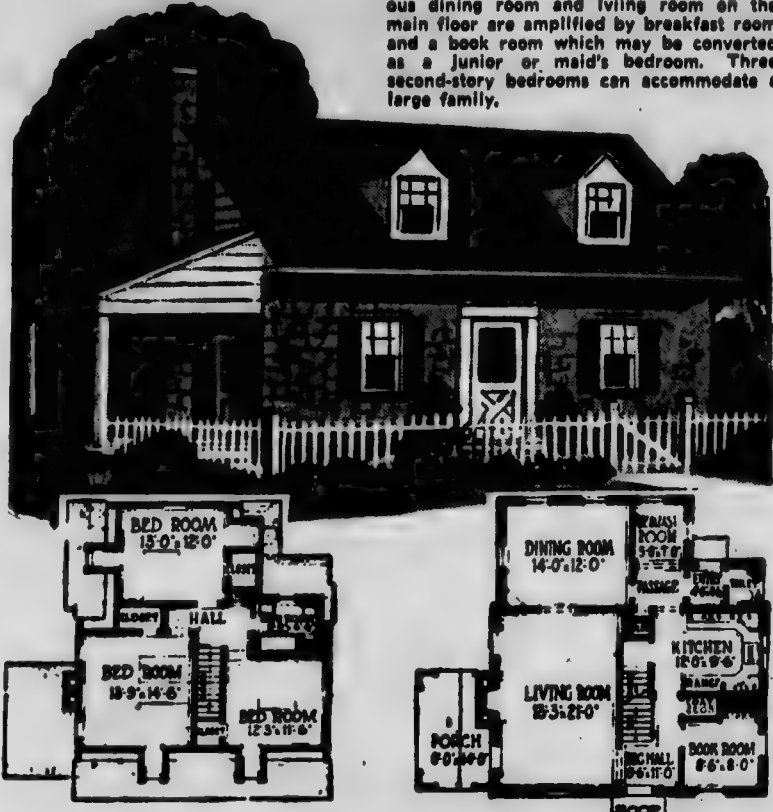

Times of London Plans Air Edition For Dominion, U.S.

LONDON, Aug. 5.—(CP)—The Times of London has announced that beginning today it would publish an "air edition" on India paper. It will be the same size but only half the weight of the regular edition. Arrangements have been made for a regular supply to be flown to Canada and the United States, reaching the eastern seaboard within two days.

shaded by a low-growing plant if planted in full sun. To assist in protecting the roots from drying out, apply a mulch of peat moss. The roots must be kept cool and moist. Plants are transplanted best in autumn, sent from the nursery as pot plants. Plant carefully and make sure that the hole is large enough to prevent crowding. Set the collar of the plant about two inches below the surface of the soil. Tamp the soil well around the roots and water well, continuing to water if the weather is dry.

Your newly-planted clematis wants the support of a trellis, a wire netting or an old tree stump. Further protection is required for the winter as mice, rabbits or other rodents enjoy eating the tender tops. So place a half-inch mesh screen about your plants. The large-flowered forms are rich in color and most spectacular, while the small-

Keep Lawn Clean Of All New Weeds

Now is the time to keep the lawn clean of all new weeds that appear, especially the young tender shoots of crab grass. Crab grass first starts as a bright green upright blade that does not look like the pest it later becomes. These young blades stand higher than the surrounding grasses, and if they are carefully pulled out before they flatten out and begin to bear seed.

Crab grass, known also as wire grass, summer grass, fall grass and water grass, thrives best in a lawn which is cut too close. Set the mower cutting bar at least an inch and a half high, two inches would be better. Tall grass shades and smothers out crab grass. When lawns are cut less than an inch the crab grass will form seed heads so close to the ground that the mower cannot cut them off. It would be advisable to rake the lawn before mowing to bring up crab grass stems.

Reseeding of bare and thin spots with Red Top and Perennial Rye grass in equal proportions, at the rate of 1/2 pound per 100 square feet, will produce quick growth. Lawns should be given a second application of fertilizer at this time, about 1 pound to each 100 square feet. Rake the fertilizer into the surface of the soil with a lawn broom and water immediately to prevent burning. Feeding at this time will build up resistance to summer heat waves.

The use of a fertilizer strong in nitrogen will tend to eliminate white clover, a plant especially troublesome in creeping bent, and its eradication is difficult. Heavy infestations may be removed by soaking the turf with a solution of sodium arsenate, 2 ounces in 4 gallons of water. This amount should cover 1000 square feet of area. Two or three applications may be necessary and, while it does burn everything, the creeping bent grasses will recover in a short time. The dead clover should be raked out and bare spots planted again with some clean bent grass or stolons.

McCoy Health Service

A cough is one of the protective measures of the body, serving a useful purpose in getting rid of irritating material. It may be acute as seen in colds, acute bronchitis and influenza, or it may be chronic as seen in chronic bronchitis and tuberculosis. It may take place at any time of day or may be present only in the morning or during the night. The act of coughing may be productive in the sense that it is accomplishing the removal of foreign material present in the upper breathing passages, or it may be unproductive in the sense that it is dry and is not "raising" any material.

A cough is correctly regarded as only a symptom, however, this symptom is produced from a wide variety of causes. The acute disorders affecting the breathing passages are the most common causes. As these respiratory troubles increase during cold or wet weather, they are responsible for the annual crop of coughs seen during winter or the late winter season. Colds, acute bronchitis, influenza, tonsillitis, laryngitis, acute pleurisy and the pneumonias are responsible for many coughs.

Some Helpful Hints To Home Gardeners

Planting in the vegetable garden at this time may include a sowing of beets and carrots, the latter for winter storage. A second sowing of cucumbers, such as Straight 8, Early Fortune or Black Diamond, may be made now to extend the season. A combination rotenone and copper spray is the best protectant for insect pests and diseases.

Chinese cabbage sown now will develop solid heads and not run to seed as will that sown earlier in the season.

Seed sown during July should be at least a half-inch deeper than spring sowings.

Ants and root aphids are often the cause of failure of vegetables and plants to thrive. Flood the soil about the infested plants with a nicotine sulfate solution, a tablespoon of the chemical to a gallon of water.

Mark the iris, peony and other early flowering plants you wish to divide or remove this fall. Do not permit any plants to go to seed.

Guard Bean Crops Against Beetle

Spraying, Dusting Will Destroy Both Insects and Eggs

The Mexican bean beetle is particularly active at this time and, unless kept under control, will seriously damage the bean crop. Spray or dust with rotenone to catch both larvae and beetles and destroy eggs on the underside of leaves. Do not use lead arsenate on beans, since it is apt to burn them. Working in the bean patch while it is wet with rain or dew is liable to spread diseases which are not easily controlled.

Blossom end rot on squash and other vegetables is caused by an over-development of the top at the expense of root growth. This condition occurs when warm, dry weather follows a cool and moist spell. The undeveloped root system cannot meet the demands of the forming fruit and rot sets in. No spray is of any aid. The answer lies in keeping the soil about the plants from drying out.

Control cabbage crabs by bending over heads to loosen root hold in soil and retard rapid growth. Heads should be cut off as soon as full grown.

Cabbage heads are liable to crack slightly during periods of rapid growth. To check the cracking, bend the plants over carefully so as to break the root on the side only. This will retard the growth of the cabbage.

Loosen Cabbage Roots to Prevent Heads Cracking

Harvest and eat white onions first, because yellow varieties keep best in storage.

Spray potatoes with Bordeaux mixture to control late blight. Tomato and celery plants, too, are subject to the same diseases and will appreciate a light spraying at the same time.

Lettuce seed can be sown at this time. Try Oak Leaf, a variety which withstands summer heat. Thin out early to prevent overcrowding.

Fertilizer applied in liquid form will benefit vegetables more quickly than if applied dry. Apply after a rain or when the soil is moist.

Cucumbers and melons will not cross if planted next to one another. Melons will cross with pumpkins but the effect does not show in that same year. However, seed from the crossed fruits will produce an undesirable hybrid.

This holds true of vegetables as well.

There is still time to make another planting or two of your favorite gladioli for bloom in September and October. Be sure to treat the bulbs to a Lysol bath before planting. Fertilize the soil to insure better blooms.

The spent blooms of azaleas, rhododendrons and mountain laurel should be broken or cut off now. But be careful not to remove any of the new leaf growth. Lilacs, too, should be cleaned of dead flower heads.

Spent mushroom soil, the soil in which last year's crop was grown, is no longer considered worthwhile for mushroom culture. It contains 50 per cent of the best rotted manure one could wish and is very friable and loose. Use it as a mulch about tomato plants and in flower borders and shrub plantings. If there is any left, use it for top-dressing the lawn. Spent mushroom soil is not high in plant nutrients but is a splendid soil conditioner and will be worked into the soil.

Reports circulating in the city concerning an alleged disturbance of prisoners at Fort Saskatchewan jail Thursday was discounted Saturday by the jail warden and deputy warden.

Trouble started, a report reaching The Bulletin said, during the prisoners' exercise hour.

Extensive Housing Scheme Proposed

OTTAWA, Aug. 5.—(CP)—Finance Minister Mackenzie King today presented the commons with the most extensive scheme of government assistance for house building ever put forward.

He described it as "A measure of major importance, not only from the point of view of improving housing and living conditions, but also as part of the government's program to provide employment in the post-war period."

In a preliminary statement on the resolution prior to the introduction of the housing bill, he said the first part of the measure dealing with houses to be built by prospective home-owners provides for joint loans by the government and approved lending institutions as in the present National Housing act.

Stand by Chinese Raises New Hope

CHUNGKING, Aug. 5.—(AP)—Heroic Chinese defenders of battered Hengyang, still holding off the Japanese after 40 days of bitter fighting, aroused a fresh surge of hope in the Chinese capital last night that enemy plans to conquer the entire Canton-Hankow railway would be shattered on the battlefield of Hunan province.

With relief columns now standing at the encircling Japanese ring around the key rail city, the defenders beat off wave after wave of attacks, the Chinese high command announced, and their stand is becoming a new symbol of Chinese resistance.

The Japanese must take Hengyang to succeed in their campaign to complete conquest of the Canton-Hankow railway, split China in two and open a line of communications from Manchuria to the south China Sea.

Troops to Break Transport Strike

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 5.—(AP)—The Philadelphia Evening Bulletin said today that two regiments of U.S. army troops are being speeded to Philadelphia to break Philadelphia's five-day transportation tie-up, which has caused race violence and slashed war production.

"Best indications were that the soldiers will be used to operate vehicles and the army will depend on the Pennsylvania State Guard to maintain order," the Bulletin said.

The Philadelphia army public relations section declined comment on the report. In Washington the war department referred queries to Philadelphia.

Meanwhile three regiments of the Pennsylvania State Guard were mobilized as the 6,000 transit strikers again defied army orders to restore service.

OTTAWA, Aug. 5.—(CP)—T. L. Church, Progressive Conservative member for Toronto Broadview constituency, said yesterday in the Commons he would like to see Gen. SUPERMAN
 JERRY SIEGEL AND JOE SHUSTER
 SUPERMAN HAS BROUGHT PRIVATE BILL BELLAMY'S DOG, KELLY, TO VISIT HIS MASTER, WHO IS AT THIS MOMENT RELAXING WITH A BUDDY CLOSE TO THE LINES IN A HOT EUROPEAN COMBAT AREA....

MEANWHILE, AN ENEMY PATROL HAS CREEPT SILENTLY UP, AND — DER AMERIKANER VILL HAF A SURPRISE VEN OFF — UND DAS DER GRENADE GOMS.
 VUN BOOM! — UND DAS IST ALLES!
 WOW! A GRENADE! FALL ON YOUR FACES!

ALL I'D HAVE TO DO TO RENDER THE EXPLOSION HARMLESS TO THE OTHERS WOULD BE TO COVER IT WITH MY BODY — BUT I'VE A FEELING I'D SPOIL AN ACT OF HEROISM....

SUPERMAN IS RIGHT — FOR KELLY DASHES FORWARD AND — KELLY! DROP THAT!!

— CARRIES THE DEADLY INSTRUMENT BACK TOWARD THE ENEMY!
 HIMMEL! HE MUST BE A RETRIEVER!
 — UND DOTS BAD!
 IT COULDN'T BE VORSE! RUN!!

KELLY! HE'LL BE KILLED!
 HE'S DROPPED IT RIGHT AMONG 'EM — AND HE'S RUNNING AWAY!

KELLY... ARE YOU O.K., PUP?
 HE'S FINE. IT'S JUST A SCRATCH.
 HE WIPED OUT THAT WHOLE ENEMY PATROL SINGLE-HANDED — AN I THOUGHT HE WAS ONLY GOOD FOR PARLOR TRICKS.

WOOF!
 THAT'S RIGHT, SUPERMAN — TAKE HIM HOME! IT'S TOO DANGEROUS AROUND HERE — AND I WANT KELLY TO BE WAITIN' FOR ME WHEN I GET HOME!
